ROOSEVELT'S MOTHER DEAD

SON AT BEDSIDE AS LIFE ENDS IN HYDE PARK, N.Y.

Private Funeral Will Be Held Tomorrow.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of President Roosevelt, died in her home on the Hudson river today at 11:15 a. m. Chicago daylight time. She would have been 87 years old on Sept. 21.

Mr. Roosevelt, her only child whom she had seen thrice inaugurated as President of the United States, and his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, had watched by her bedside thruout the night and were there when the end came. Altho tears coursed down the cheeks of both as they kept the lonely vigil, they took the news of her passing calmly.

Radio Address Postponed.

Because of his mother's death, the President's radio address, scheduled for 9 p. m. tomorrow, Chicago daylight time, has been postponed until 9 p. m. Thursday, White House headquarters announced. The speech, it has been announced, will be of "major importance." It will be broadcast over the three major radio networks and rebroadcast by short wave in 14 different languages. Altho the subject has not been disclosed, it is assumed it will deal with the international situation. [The speech will be broadcast over station W-G-N in Chicago.]

[A dispatch from Washington, D. C., said President Roosevelt's address was expected in well informed official circles to foreshadow, if it does not expressly announce, participation by American naval forces in a shooting war, with orders to clear the Atlantic of German submarines and surface raiders.]

Stricken Friday Night.

Mrs. Roosevelt's death was attributed to advanced age. According to Dr. Scott L. Smith, the family physician, she was stricken Friday night, but her condition did not become alarming until nearly 24 hours later. She lapsed into a coma 12 hours before her death and never regained consciousness.

Dr. Smith released the following formal statement:

"For 12 hours preceding her death Mrs. Roosevelt had been unconscious following an acute circulatory collapse, due principally to her advanced age. The first intimation of this occurred during Friday night but did not become alarming until late Saturday evening."

Funeral to be Private.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday and will be private. The family requested thru White House spokesmen that no flowers be sent.

Attendance at the funeral, it was announced, will be limited to relatives, and friends and neighbors of approximately Mrs. Roosevelt's age. The hour for the services was not announced and, according to White House spokesmen, it probably will not be announced in view of the family's desire to keep the funeral private.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be buried in the family lot beside her husband, James, who died in 1900. The lot is in the rear of the churchyard of St. James Episcopal church in Hyde Park which has been the family worshiping place for several generations.

Old Custom to Prevail.

Following an old Dutch custom, Mrs. Roosevelt will be buried at her husband's left side, just as she stood at his left when they were married.

Also buried in the Roosevelt family lot are the President's grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Roosevelt, who died in 1876, and his first born son, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who died in infancy in 1909.

St. James' church, gray stone and ivy covered, is about two miles along the Albany post road from the Roosevelt estate. The pastor is the Rev. Frank R. Wilson, and it was believed he would officiate at the funeral services, altho no announcement was made.

Home Overlooks Hudson.

Mrs. Roosevelt's home, which will be the scene of the services, is a rambling structure of stone and stucco which looks out over the Hudson river and the misty heights of the Catskill foothills.

James and Elliott Roosevelt, sons of the President, who were notified

GERMANS ADMIT REDS' DEFENSE SLOWS ADVANCE

German dispatches admitted the Russians were fighting bitterly from tree to tree and village to village in the defense of Leningrad. The Germans admitted their progress was hampered by thousands of land mines and muddy roads. The Germans credited the Finns with diverting the attention of thousands of Russian troops and thus weakening the defense of Leningrad. The German air force made new air attacks on Odessa and other points.

The Finns reported that by a 50 mile advance in three days they had reached the Syuari (Svir) river between Lake Ladoga and Lake Onega, a link in the Stalin canal from the Gulf of Finland to the Arctic ocean.

The Russians today declared their forces were counterattacking on a broad front before Leningrad and west of Moscow. The Germans were reported driven from a vital highway leading to Leningrad and the fighting was continuing 'round the clock. One of Germany's largest U-boats was reported captured in the Barents sea, a part of the Arctic north of Murmansk.

THE MODEL SEEMS TO HAVE HAD A SLIGHT ACCIDENT

Hunger Wears Down Belgium, Survey Shows

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—A statistical review of the progressive starvation in Belgium over the last few months and the prospect of a resulting catastrophe this winter was contained in a report released today at the New York offices of the National Committee on Food for the Small Democracies.

The report was based on a recent survey of the Belgium situation made by Dr. Edouard J. Bigwood, technical adviser to the exiled government of Belgium in London.

Professor at Brussels U.

Dr. Bigwood has been a professor in the University of Brussels since 1930 and formerly studied at the Johns Hopkins medical school and at Columbia University Presbyterian hospital. He unqualifiedly termed the general health situation in Belgium as alarming, and said that the situation this winter may lead to a catastrophe if something is not done.

[Great Britain has refused to permit food to enter any of the invaded countries on the ground that some of it might get into the hands of the Germans or even if they did not get it such shipments would relieve the Nazis of sending their own supplies to the hungry conquered people.]

Dr. Bigwood's report contained the following summations:

More than 60 per cent of the children of school age in towns no longer get any breakfast, or scarcely any; one-third get inadequate noon meals and one-half insufficient supper.

Children Faint in School.

In kindergartens 33 per cent were in a definitely weak condition in May, 1940. By January of this year the percentage had risen to 47.

In primary schools 48 per cent demonstrated weakened physical condition in May last year. Today the percentage has increased to 63.

Cases of children fainting in school are becoming more numerous, particularly among those between the ages of 13 and 18.

The diet, considered as a whole, probably is adequate in calories, or approximately so, for infants up to 3 years of age. The deficit is slight from 3 to 6. It reached 50 per cent at 14 and is over 60 per cent in the case of adolescents.

Commenting on the Bigwood survey, former President Herbert Hoover, honorary chairman of the food committee, said:

"These conditions are reported as of the end of July this year. The suffering of these people will be even worse during the coming winter and spring than is indicated in this report. In varying degrees this also is the food situation in the other occupied small democracies."

UNION OFFICIAL TELLS OF THREAT BY HUMPHREYS

Charges of terrorism against Murray Humphreys, No. 1 man in the Nitti gang, were made yesterday at a meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Herman Diehl, representing the Calumet Joint Labor council, told his colleagues of being personally threatened by Humphreys.

"I helped the milk drivers' union in taking 10 stops in Calumet City away from a nonunion concern," Diehl told the federation delegates. "Murray Humphreys told me I'd be a dead duck if I didn't quit interfering in his business and preventing his milk company's sales.

"But I didn't quit and he didn't scare me. I'm still with this federation and any one else who battles labor crooks and racketeers."

The information conveyed by Diehl contradicted Humphreys' claim that he no longer is in the milk business. He recently was forced out of a cleaning and dyeing firm when Mayor Kelly revoked his company's license.

Reds to Uproot Old Colony of Volga Germans

MOSCOW, Sept. 8 [Monday] (AP).—A mass movement into exile in Siberia was ordered today for the heavily German-derived population of the Volga region because of their alleged readiness to sabotage the Russian war effort with "explosions in those regions at a signal from Germany." In the area, the Russians said, are "tens of thousands of diversionists and spies among the German population."

The German Volga territory is an autonomous soviet republic in European Russia, north of the Caspian sea. Of its population of 571,089 in 1926 about 67 per cent were Germans. The republic covers some 10,329 square miles, about three-fourths lying on the left bank of the Volga river and the remainder on the right bank.

Settled in 18th Century.

The German population grew from 27,000 colonists settled there in 1760-'61 at the invitation of Catherine the Great by special manifesto.

The order calling for the resettlement in Siberia, which was signed on Aug. 28, provided that it be carried out as soon as possible by the national defense council. The decree said in part:

"If diversionist acts took place under orders of Germany by German diversionists and spies in the Volga German republic or neighboring regions and there were bloodshed, the soviet government would be forced according to martial law to adopt measures of reprisal against the entire German population.

Move Thousands of Miles.

"In order to avoid such undesirable occurrences and to forestall serious bloodshed, the presidium of the supreme council of the U. S. S. R. has found it necessary to resettle the entire German population of the Volga regions to other regions.

To carry out the vast project, the Volga Germans must be transported across thousands of miles of Asiatic Russia.

The decree provides that they be resettled in the Novosibirsk and Omsk regions of western Siberia, the Altai region of the Kazakhstan republic and "neighboring localities rich in land."

The resettled families will be given land and state aid to start life anew in their new surroundings, it was stated.

LA GUARDIA SEES DOOM FOR ICKES GASLESS NIGHTS

Curfew Inexcusable, Mayor Admits.

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes' 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. curfew on gasoline sales in the east was blown sky high tonight. It was shattered by none other than Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, one of the Roosevelt administration's most vociferous war mongers.

The mayor admitted that there's no excuse for the curfew and expressed the hope that it will be "rescinded very soon." La Guardia's public disapproval of the Ickes edict came as a climax to a senate committee investigation which already has exposed as unwarranted Ickes' trumpeting of an oil shortage.

"There seems to be general agreement," announced Mayor La Guardia, "that there is no real necessity for closing gasoline stations any part of the day or night."

A Powerful Voice.

Political observers in New York believe the voice of the mayor, who is seeking a third term, will receive careful attention in Washington. He is considered one of the more influential spokesmen for the New Deal. Moreover he is chairman of the national civilian defense committee and his chief assignment is to stir up a warlike mood thruout the nation.

La Guardia's reference to the "general agreement" on the oil situation evidently related to the recent testimony of half a dozen witnesses before the senate committee that actually there is no oil shortage in the east or anywhere else, nor need there be.

The bogey of an oil shortage was the pretext on which Secretary Ickes, who was appointed dictator of the petroleum industry by President Roosevelt, invoked the curfew on gasoline sales in 17 eastern states from Maine to Florida and in the District of Columbia on Aug. 3.

Tankers Transferred Abroad.

The cause, it was explained, was the transfer of 50 American oil tankers to Great Britain. The vessels had been used to transport the fuel from the southwest.

This explanation was quickly spiked, as was the scare of an oil shortage, at the senate hearings.

First, Senator Francis Maloney [D., Conn.], chairman, read an article from the London [England] Economist indicating that Britain did not need the 50 tankers whose transfer in May allegedly created the shortage.

Next, the America First committee's research bureau revealed that Britain now has an excess of more than 500 tankers over the maximum of 250 required for war uses.

20,000 Cars Idle.

Third, J. J. Pelley, president of the American Association of Railroads, revealed that 20,000 tank cars were standing idle, and even with a tanker shortage could transport more than enough oil and gasoline to the eastern states.

One of the chief remedies proposed by Ickes to relieve the so-called oil shortage is the construction of a pipe line from the Texas oil fields to a point near New York, The cost has been estimated at approximately 100 million dollars. [For further details on the pipe line see page 23.]

NEW ZEALAND BILL FIXES $1.25 AS TOP FEE FOR ANY DOCTOR

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Sept. 7.—The government has introduced in the house of representatives a bill that would compel them, doctors declare, virtually to give their services to the national free medical care scheme. The house is expected to pass it.

The bill provides that any doctor treating a patient after Oct. 1 will be entitled to a fee from the social security fund. The fees are fixed at $1 when a patient visits a doctor and $1.25 when a doctor calls on a patient.

Dr. James P. Jamieson, chairman of the national health insurance committee of the medical association, said today a government official admitted the plan would end private service.

Army Will Use Planes Called 'Death Traps'

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—The Louisiana army maneuvers, scheduled for the next three weeks, may give the nation an accurate measure of the new series of light and medium bombardment planes, revealed yesterday in Baltimore as unsuitable for their jobs and so designed that they may kill many young American pilots if they are ordered to fly them.

One squadron of each of three specific types of the new twin motored bombers will be assigned to air forces supporting the Second and Third armies that will meet in the war games. These squadrons, according to word from the office of the chief of the air corps, will fly under simulated war conditions, and possibly will be forced to operate at night and under the handicaps of bad weather by day.

Hazards in Landing.

Such operations could test to the fullest extent the all-around performance of the new members. All the new planes are said to be superlatively fast and maneuverable in the air, and all carry good loads of bombs. But all of them are reported to land so fast that only crack airmen can get them down safely on large airports with paved runways in daytime conditions. They are said to be entirely too fast for night landings.

The civilian factory test pilots who made these charges yesterday in Baltimore, said any tests of the craft that call for night flights will bring in their wake numerous crashes and possibly deaths. Nevertheless, they said, unless some such public demonstration is given the army will continue to buy similarly useless craft.

The test pilots said they had reported the faults of the new planes to the army, but no action has been taken to halt production lines in factories on both the east and west coasts where these bombers now are being built. Approximately 300 of the craft have been completed and are staked out on factory fields. A number have been delivered to the army.

Planes with Both Armies.

The types of planes that are to be watched particularly by the army, by the manufacturers and by civilian observers in the coming games are the B-26, built at Baltimore by Glenn L. Martin company, and the A-20A, manufactured at Santa Monica, Cal., by Douglas Aircraft company. Another plane to be watched will be the North American Aviation company's B-25.

According to notes on the battle problems and combat exercises of the First Air Force that will be supporting the Third army in Louisiana, 145 bombers and 167 pursuit ships will be assigned for this purpose. In this group there will be one squadron of B-26s and several of B-25 bombers.

The Second army's air support will consist of 141 bombers and 159 pursuit ships. In this command there will be one squadron of A-20As and several of B-25s.

High Landing Speeds.

Criticism of the planes has been aimed entirely at their landing speeds. The A-20A and the B-26 alight at speeds between 115 and 120 miles an hour. The B-25 is said to alight at 90 miles an hour. It is possible to land, according to the civilian test pilots, only on paved runways 4,500 feet long.

Tests have indicated, according to the pilots that the A-20A, for example, if landed with wheel brakes locked, into dry dirt, will slide for 6,000 feet.

"This means," one of the test pilots said, "that a landing on dry dirt means a washout of the airplane which is an item costing only a little less than $200,000, and almost certain injuries for the pilot.

"If the landing is made on grass, or slippery ground, a crackup is absolutely certain unless a clear runway of a couple of miles or more is available."

These Bandits Get Loot of a Varied Assortment

Frank Nelson, 4146 North Menard avenue, a drug supplies salesman, was held up by two bandits at Montrose and Narragansett avenues last night and robbed of $200 worth of pills and capsules, a watch, and a spare wheel and tire.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Sept. 7 (AP).—Earthquake shocks were felt here at 10:13 and 10:15 o'clock, Chicago time tonight, but a quick survey indicated no severe damage. The shocks also were felt in Ventura and Lompoc.

TEXAN ACCUSES FOUR AIDS OF RED LEANINGS

Will Expose Others in OPA, He Says.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—Immediate removal of Price Administrator Leon Henderson and four key subordinates in the Office of Price Administration on the grounds they are communists or communist sympathizers, was asked of President Roosevelt today by Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities.

Leon Henderson.

In a letter to the chief executive Dies said: "I deem it my duty to bring to your attention a situation which exists in the office." He said that the facts he submitted in his letter are sufficient to warrant the immediate severance of Henderson and his subordinates from the pay roll.

"If and when these persons are removed from their respective positions," Dies said, "I shall be glad to coöperate with the administration in bringing to light similar facts concerning other employés of OPA, to the end that this country may be defended against its enemies within as well as against those without."

Brady Is Named.

The subordinates named by Dies are:

Mildred Edie Brady [wife of Robert A. Brady], principal specialist in consumer education of OPA, salary $5,000.

Robert A. Brady, head consultant of OPA, salary $7,500.

Tom Tippett, assistant chief of rent section of OPA, salary $5,600.

Dewey H. Palmer, consultant for OPA, salary $20 a day.

In his letter Dies recalls that he had previously informed the house that Henderson has been in the past connected with several of the front organizations or transmission belts of the communist party, being president of the Washington branch of the Spanish refugee relief campaign.

Host to a Communist.

Dies recalled that Henderson had assaulted a local news photographer who tried to take a picture at a reception Henderson was giving in his home for a nationally prominent communist, Dorothy Parker.

"Waiving for the present the question of Mr. Henderson's own connections with communist transmission belts," Dies wrote, "I wish to lay before you, Mr. President, certain facts which show that the Office of Price Administration is staffed with appointed officials whose recorded views are completely at variance with any concept of Americanism that could find substantial support among the American people."

Taking up the case of Brady, Dies said that in 1937 the Left Book club of England printed in 1937 a volume entitled "The Spirit and Structure of German Fascism," written by Robert A. Brady. Dies recalled that Henderson told the house committee on banking and currency that he "ran thru" the volume at the time of its publication and therefore had some knowledge of his subordinate's views before appointing him to one of the most important posts in the government.

Book Attacks Free Enterprise.

Dies said the volume is an attack on Nazism from the standpoint of the communist party line. Dies included quotes from the book in his letter to the President to sustain his contention. The quotes assail capitalism, business, free enterprise in the communist manner and declared that the United States is only "technically non-Fascist."

Dies recalled that Brady was an associate editor of "Black and White," a communist publication, and a member of the national committee of the

SARA ROOSEVELT DIES; PRESIDENT AT HER BEDSIDE

End Comes in Hyde Park Home at Age of 86.

during the night of the alarming turn Mrs. Roosevelt had taken, arrived here this afternoon. A third grandson, John, was expected soon. Her two other grandchildren, Mrs. Anna Boettiger of Seattle, Wash., and Franklin Roosevelt Jr., altho also notified, are not expected to come here, it was indicated. In Franklin's case, it was explained, a trip would be impossible because he is at sea aboard a United States warship. Mrs. Roosevelt also is survived by 10 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Roosevelt was visited yesterday afternoon by her only surviving sister, Mrs. Price Collier, of Tuxedo Park, and her brother, Frederick A. Delano, arrived in Hyde Park this morning shortly before she died.

Recall Injury in Fall.

Altho the news of Mrs. Roosevelt's death came suddenly to the Presidential party, members of which were passing a quiet Sabbath in Hyde Park and nearby Poughkeepsie, it was not a great surprise to family friends and close associates of the President.

It was recalled that she fell in her home and broke her hip about three years ago. Always before that astonishingly vigorous and alert for one of her age, she began to fail rapidly. In the last year, her friends recognized, her condition had taken a much more serious turn.

It was especially to visit his mother that the President made a trip from Washington by special train last Friday night. He had not seen her since she left for her summer home at Campobello Island, New Brunswick, early in July. She returned from there last Tuesday only a few hours after the President had departed for Washington from Hyde Park, where he had spent the Labor day week-end in his mother's home.

Visit at Bedside Told.

A member of the White House staff said Mr. Roosevelt and his mother had "a perfectly splendid visit" together yesterday, when he spent much of his time at her bedside, talking and joshing good humoredly before she became unconscious.

Mrs. Roosevelt's favorite topic was "my son, the President," and she liked nothing better than to be called "the President's mother."

Mr. Roosevelt's deep affection for his mother and their close association during his days as governor of New York and later when he became President were well known. Even when he was a child she was his nurse and guided him thru his youth and watched his steady political rise.

Mrs. Roosevelt, famed for her beauty in her youth, was from another era in American society, an era of grande dames and dowager duchesses. Hers were all the characteristics of a grande dame, and she ruled her household in a regal manner. The Roosevelt estate, which now will pass to the President, was hers by virtue of her husband's will. The President was a young man when his father died and received only a small share of the estate which was left in trust.

The Roosevelt Hyde Park estate is famed as the place where the President has spent numerous week-ends away from White House cares. His visits always were looked forward to with a great deal of anticipation by Mrs. Roosevelt, who, it is said, liked nothing better than to welcome the President under her roof, where she had him under her eye again.

However, there was never any question as to who was the ruler of the house whether or not the President's four stars flew from the front portico. According to those who have been guests in the mansion, Mrs. Roosevelt showed no hesitancy in marching into conferences of government officials to find out what her son wanted for lunch or to ask some other question.

She, it is said, was in the forefront as much as Mr. Roosevelt himself in entertaining King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of England during their visit here in 1939. It was she who arranged the menus and decided what rooms the royal guests would occupy, and when reporters arrived to obtain the details it was Mrs. Roosevelt who announced them.

One of 11 Children.

Mrs. Roosevelt was born on Sept. 21, 1854, at Algonac, north of Newburgh-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., the seventh of 11 children. Her mother was the former Katherine Robbins Lyman of Northampton, Mass. Her father, Warren Delano, was one of a long line of merchants in the far east trade.

Delano was a large landholder along the Hudson river, but the panic of 1857 swept away his fortune. He went to the far east to recoup his losses and within a few years sent for his family. Sara was 8 years old when she accompanied her mother to China to join her father.

They lived in Hongkong for a while and then returned to America. On their way home they stopped in Europe, one of the many visits she was to make there during her lifetime. Her whole life was lived in an atmosphere of dignity and tradition. She was educated by governesses in her own home and later studied in France and Germany.

Aristocratic Families United.

Her marriage to James Roosevelt on Oct. 7, 1880, joined her to a line as aristocratic as her own. Her husband belonged to the distinguished New York family whose name is recurrent in American history. His father, Isaac Roosevelt, was a distant cousin of President Theodore Roosevelt.

James Roosevelt was educated to be a lawyer, but he never practiced, preferring his financial and railroad interests. After his death, on Dec. 8, 1900, his widow lived in the Roosevelt town house in Manhattan and with her family at Hyde Park in the summertime.

On one of her many visits to Europe, in May, 1931, Mrs. Roosevelt contracted influenza in Paris, and her son, then governor of New York, crossed the Atlantic to see her.

In June, 1934, Mrs. Roosevelt went to London, where she paid an informal and almost unprecedented visit to another famous mother, Queen Mary of England, in the royal private suite rarely seen by visitors.

Three years later, as she neared 83, Mrs. Roosevelt made another trip to Europe. Her last trip abroad was in 1939, when she went to France to see her sister, Mrs. Dora Delano Forbes, who died the next year.

PARTNER IN AUTO AGENCY GIVES UP AS DEATH DRIVER

Fled in Fright After Car Hit Cyclist, He Says.

Edmund P. Campbell, part owner of the B & W Motor company, 827 West 35th street, surrendered to East Side police yesterday as the hit and run driver whose car struck and fatally injured a bicyclist Saturday night. The victim, Thomas Fattore, 65, of 10547 Hoxie avenue, was run down at 114th street and Torrence avenue.

A witness gave to police a license number, which was traced to Campbell. He was being sought at the time of his surrender. Campbell, who is 41 and lives at 8557 South Loomis boulevard, said he did what he could for Fattore, then became frightened and fled.

Hit, Run Driver Surrenders.

Another hit and run driver, Raymond Rye, 21, of 1850 Superior street, also surrendered to police. Early yesterday his car killed Walter Engedahl, 47, on North avenue, near Wolf road. Engedahl lived in North Lake village, northwest of Melrose Park. Rye, a machine operator, said he turned back after the accident, saw police and drove away.

Four Chicago men were killed early yesterday when their car collided with a Greyhound bus on U. S. route 41, north of Morocco, Ind. The victims, all painters, were Stanley Wotysiak, 28 years old, of 1539 South Ridgeway avenue; B. R. Hurt, 21, of 2831 North Fairfield avenue; Joseph Schwartz, 18, of 2242 South California avenue, and Joseph Abromovitz, 22, of 3465 Lituanica avenue.

Private Earl L. Burck, 23 years old, of Chicago, was killed yesterday when his automobile overturned in a ditch two miles east of Sulphur, La. His home was at 3006 North Lowell avenue. He was attached to the 36th infantry at Camp Polk, La.

Held in Mystery Accident.

Maxwell street police were holding John Santoniello, 18, of 2448 Polk street, yesterday in an investigation of a mysterious accident at Ashland avenue and Roosevelt road.

Other motorists saw a pedestrian struck and hurled high into the air by an automobile at the intersection. Two men and a girl in the automobile picked up the victim and said they would take him to a hospital. Other drivers followed them until the car vanished. The other motorists supplied the car's license number to Policemen George Schell and William Hensen, who traced it to Santoniello.

Santoniello, a laborer, said he had struck a man, but that the victim refused to go to a hospital. Instead, Santoniello said, the victim insisted upon being taken to his home near 14th street and 51st avenue, Cicero.

Santoniello said he took the man there and helped him from the car. The police, however, could find no trace of the victim.

Woman Killed Near Glenview.

Miss Rita O'Connell, 24, a maid employed at 1111 North Leclaire avenue, was killed in Milwaukee avenue a half mile south of Lake avenue, west of Glenview, when she was struck by a car driven by John E. McDonald, 1939 Erie street. Morris Diver, 25, of 2531 North Lawndale avenue, Miss O'Connell's companion, suffered a skull fracture.

Ross Worthington, 51, a patient at the Hines veterans' hospital, was killed outside the entrance of the hospital. The accident occurred in Roosevelt road at 5th avenue, Maywood. Worthington was from Detroit, Mich. The driver was William Mikusch of 7th avenue, Maywood.

Mrs. Catherine Piekut, 75, was killed by an automobile in front of her home at 2723 South Kolin avenue yesterday as she was on her way to church. The driver was Martin Marich, 20, of 2129 South Harding avenue.

Mrs. Maxine Williams Drone, 31, of 4651 Magnolia avenue, died in a Mayfield, Ky., hospital Saturday night of injuries suffered when a car in which she was riding hit a bridge, skidded into a gasoline station and struck another car. The auto was driven by Charles Hensley, 29, of 3417 Monroe street. Witnesses said the car was traveling about 80 miles an hour.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 641 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 442 were killed in Chicago, where 17,044 were injured in the same period.

RED ARMY TAKES OFFENSIVE ALONG LENINGRAD FRONT

Claim Big German U-Boat Captured in Arctic.

MOSCOW, Sept. 8 [Monday] (AP).—Russian forces, on the counteroffensive against the Germans by land, sea, and air, have driven the Germans from a vital highway leading to Leningrad, delivered "massive" aerial blows at the Nazis and captured a big Nazi U-boat in the Barents sea, it was reported today. The Barents sea is a part of the Arctic and is north of the Murmansk region.

The Red armies hold the initiative on a broad section of the western front, it was announced here, with some of the fiercest fighting of the war, now in its 12th week, taking place 'round the clock on the mud-churned, fog-shrouded battlefield before Leningrad.

Today's early morning war report said Red airmen yesterday backed up the embattled land forces with one destructive attack after another upon the Germans at the front and ranged far beyond the lines to hammer home telling raids on Nazi airdromes.

One of Largest U-Boats.

The captured German submarine was identified by the official announcement as the U-73, one of Germany's largest seagoing submersibles.

Accounts of the determined Russian efforts to smash the Nazi threat to Leningrad indicated that tremendous losses were being inflicted upon Adolf Hitler's invaders.

The counterattacking force commanded by Col. Donskov was said in an account of Izvestia, the government newspaper, first to have blocked a German thrust across a river and then to have taken the offensive. The Germans lost 1,500 dead and wounded in the one action.

[Altho the river was not named, it may have been the Neva, which flows from the southwestern corner of Lake Ladoga at Schluesselburg, thru Leningrad to the Gulf of Finland. The Germans have announced that the railway line from Schluesselburg, 25 miles east of Leningrad, and Leningrad itself were under German artillery fire.]

Fight Off Parachutists.

Col. Donskov's troops were forced to fight off a group of 50 German parachutists dropped in their rear during the night, it was said, but these were finished off before dawn.

To the north of Leningrad battling was reported going on with the Finns in the vicinity of Kesteng, on the shore of a Karelian lake.

Western Red army forces pursued counterattacks in the direction of Gomel, southwest of Moscow, and were reported to have recaptured a series of large settlements.

On the approaches to Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, hundreds of big guns were reported raining shells from all sides upon concentrations of German troops and tanks.

At the southern end of the line, where Odessa, like Leningrad, is a center of embattled resistance, sailors of the Red fleet also were playing a stellar rôle. Naval guns, in coöperation with the army, were shelling German concentrations, artillery batteries and airdromes.

Destroy 21 Nazi Tanks.

In the Gomel sector a rifle division was reported by Red Star to have destroyed 21 German tanks in one stubborn battle and to have captured many field guns.

Thirty-five German bombers were reported destroyed when Russian raiders swooped upon two airdromes.

A review of aerial operations in the last 11 weeks published in Red Star said the Germans have lost 7,200 planes so far, more than 2,000 of them wrecked on the ground. German Messerschmitt 109s were said to be losing heavily in air battles with soviet fighters.

Black area is the German Volga district of Russia from which the soviet government plans to remove German derived population because of alleged readiness to sabotage the Russian war effort. Those removed would be taken to Siberia.

Nazis See Moscow Defense as Key to Soviet Strategy

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Russian strategy, as understood by the Germans after 11 weeks of fierce fighting in the east, is based on one main objective—the defense of Moscow.

Marshal Budenny.

This strategy, in the German view, is pursued regardless of the losses and consequences it may have on other vital sectors of the 1,500 mile front.

The encirclement of Leningrad, which the Germans claim now is practically complete, according to Germans would have been impossible at the present stage if the soviet command had not reënforced the Moscow sector held by Marshal S. K. Timoshenko at the expense of the northern front. The same applies in a less degree to the southern front.

Budenny Forces Depleted.

It is understood here that Marshal S. M. Budenny's army was sorely depleted in the battles of the western Ukraine and received no appreciable reënforcements despite the pressure exerted by Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's German forces on the eastern bank of the lower Dnieper river. There again the soviets are subordinating even the defense of the vital Donetz coal basin to the defense of Moscow.

As apt pupils of German assault tactics, the soviets are defending Moscow by taking the offensive. For weeks on end strong soviet forces have been attacking north and south of the broad motor highway from Smolensk to Moscow with the apparent objective of recapturing Smolensk. Germans assert the soviet attack waves in this sector have been repelled again and again by the concentrated fire of German infantry.

Erred in Gauging Strength.

An order by Marshal Timoshenko to his troops, which the Germans intercepted, revealed that the soviets were under the impression that in this sector German infantry divisions were, at points, without the support of tanks and that accordingly attacks were to be concentrated on these points. The soviet attacks collapsed, the Germans said, even when supported by soviet tanks.

Since the Russians apparently have concentrated their crack divisions for the defense of Moscow, the Germans have increased pressure on the right and left flanks of the front. The Germans claim that their vise is closing on Leningrad and that Schluesselburg, the southeastern cornerstone of the Leningrad defenses, has been under first of German guns since Sept. 3.

Schluesselburg, on the south shore of Lake Ladoga, the Germans say, is the last loophole left open to the defenders of Leningrad for a possible escape to the east.

BRITON SEEKS TO CALL HESS AS COURT WITNESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—An announcement by Harry Pollitt, communist writer, that he plans to summon Rudolf Hess as a witness in a libel suit instituted against Pollitt by the duke of Hamilton raises an unprecedented legal problem.

Hess, who was Adolf Hitler's deputy, is a prisoner of state in a secret prison and may be regarded as inaccessible, his whereabouts not known to process servers. Prisoners are normally considered served, however, when a summons is handed to a jail warden.

Hess, when he bailed out of a German war plane near Hamilton's home in Scotland, was reported to have mentioned the duke's name. Pollitt wrote a leaflet entitled "Why Is Hess Here?" and it is the basis of the duke's suit.

NAZIS CLAIM 92 RED SHIPS SUNK IN FINNISH GULF

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—As a "sign of the destruction of soviet power in the Baltic" the official German news agency DNB today announced that 65 Russian transports and 27 warships were sunk by the German navy and air force in the Finnish gulf last week. "The figures show that flight of the Russians out of Tallinn and Baltic port [Baltiski] was prevented," DNB said. Both places are in Estonia; Tallinn is the capital.

RUSSIANS FIGHT TREE TO TREE IN LENINGRAD AREA

Germans Admit Defense Stand Is Stubborn.

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—German dispatches from the eastern front today said that the defenders of beleaguered Leningrad were fighting it out village by village and that slowly advancing German troops could count on the bitterest resistance at every clump of trees and on every hillock.

The regular communique from Adolf Hitler's headquarters merely said that "operations in the east continue to take their planned course."

Military considerations, Berlin sources said, made it impossible to disclose troop positions or indicate more than in a general way what progress had been made. But every report allowed to drift back from the fighting zone emphasized the determined nature of the defense.

Remove 1,000 Land Mines.

Dispatches said that fields, highways and even towns were protected by countless land mines to be touched off by a careless footstep or the pressure of an auto wheel.

The commander of one German corps said that his engineers had managed to remove 1,000 mines in about two days.

Difficulties also were imposed by the weather. One army reporter wrote that the roads are "bottomless mud."

Hundreds of German combat planes and dive bombers attacked the defenders of Leningrad in the area south of Lake Ladoga Saturday, and only one German plane was acknowledged lost in the assault.

The Germans credited the Finns with helping considerably to sap the strength of Leningrad's defenses. It was said that the Finns on the Karelian isthmus were tying up thousands of Russian soldiers who otherwise could be thrown against the Germans. German dispatches credited the Finns with taking 9,000 prisoners in the capture of Viipuri [Viborg].

Destroy Transport in Baltic.

In air and sea actions, which were part of the Leningrad operations, the Germans reported aerial destruction of a 2,000-ton transport off Oesel island [off Estonia], damaging of a speedboat, and three patrol craft.

The air force was reported to have carried out new attacks on the city and harbor of Odessa, on the Black sea, at the southern end of the main German-Russian battle line. Odessa has been ringed by German and Rumanian besiegers for days.

As a surprise to the Germans, about 40 miles east of Odessa there has just been a Russian artillery counter-assault on Ochakov. Russian batteries opened fire from a small Black sea island, but the Germans said they were silenced by German gunners.

Flyers Bomb Troop Masses.

The air force directed blows against troop concentrations and columns in the area between the Dnieper river and the Sea of Azov.

German military leaders were especially reluctant to mention places involved in fighting on the middle sector of the front. However, they said that the air force had been busy there, derailing six troop trains and causing one munitions train to explode. In all, 26 trains were destroyed.

The Germans in a surprise thrust crossed a river, unidentified, in the middle sector and there formed a bridgehead which they held against counterassault. The Germans reported capture of 52 cannon and hundreds of prisoners in the middle region.

Snow in Carpathians.

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—The Hungarian radio tonight said the first snow fell today in the eastern Carpathian mountains and at other points of Transylvania.

Predict Fall of Leningrad.

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 7.—Military circles here tonight cautiously predicted the possibility of the imminent fall of Leningrad. On its approaches from Kingisepp and Trotzkoje, as well as along the shore of the Gulf of Finland, desperate Russian resistance was admitted by Moscow commentators to have only slowed down the German advance.

The Reds were reported to be concentrating all their efforts to the east and southwest to keep their lines of communications open. Several counterattacks were stated to have momentarily reduced the German pressure east of Pavlovsk, only 14 miles south of the city. The Germans were stated to be pouring their élite troops and newest materiel into the struggle.

Axis circles have been saying that the Red northern armies may be planning to withdraw to more easily defendable positions to the east of the Volchov valley.

FINNS REACH LINK OF STALIN CANAL IN 50 MILE DRIVE

Connects Gulf of Finland with Arctic Sea.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Sept. 7.—After three days of hard fighting and marching, Finnish troops have reached the Syuari river [Svir or Sykaeri]. This 84-mile long river connects Lake Ladoga with Lake Onega and is part of the Stalin canal system connecting the Gulf of Finland and the White sea and Arctic. The river lies just outside the official boundaries of eastern Karelia which the Finns recently declared annexed to Finland.

The official communique today was brief, merely stating that after a long pause the offensive begun in July was reopened on Sept. 4 and during three days the Finns had advanced nearly 50 miles and reached the Syuari river.

Thus far there has been no hint by Finland's leaders as to where this country's new eastern frontier will run. However, a significant semi-official statement appeared a few days ago in one of the leading German newspapers.

Mention of Murmansk.

The statement declared that Germany does not expect Finland to make further sacrifices in conquering land to which she has no claim or special interest and that following the occupation of the Karelian isthmus front before Leningrad and eastern Karelia, Germany was satisfied and proud of her ally's achievements. However, it concluded that there still remained Murmansk, the big Russian port on the Arctic ocean.

This brief mention of Murmansk in connection with soviet territory involving Finland's interests was the first statement of its kind in the German press. Thus far the statement has evoked no official or semi-official reply from the Finnish side, altho there has been much speculation as to what is going to happen to Murmansk and the mineral laden Kola peninsula.

If Finland should be awarded the Kola peninsula, this country would be far richer in natural resources than Sweden, the richest country in the north.

Food Shortage in Leningrad?

The presence of the Finnish troops on the Syuari river indicates that communications in Aunus [Olonetz] are severed and that the Finns continue to press southeast to meet German forces who are advancing from behind Leningrad.

A front line correspondent reported an interview with a refugee who left Leningrad a few days ago. The refugee reported that on Sept. 1 food cards no longer were honored by the state trade organizations. He declared the great mechanical bakeries no longer are functioning and that it is impossible to obtain bread. Many thousands of refugees from Murmansk and easterr Karelian and also people forcibly evacuated from the three Baltic states and even from Polish districts could be seen wandering homeless thru the streets of Leningrad.

Leningrad, which at the outbreak of hostilities had 3,500,000 inhabitants now is said to contain approximately 5,000,000 besides the great concentration of Red army units defending the city.

BRITISH PRAYERS ASK VICTORY FOR ONCE HATED REDS

See 'God Vs. State' as Nazi War Issue.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP).—In churches which many times in the past rang with denunciations of all things communistic, millions of Britons prayed today for a victory of Russian as well as British arms.

Archbishop of Canterbury [top] and Cardinal Hinsley.

A day of prayer, requested by the king, coincided with the first anniversary of the beginning of the great air assault on London. One year ago 350 warplanes swooped down on this capital and flames leaped from bombed docks and buildings.

No bombs disturbed London's churchgoers today but elsewhere there were grim reminders that the air war was not ended. Worshipers in one southwest England town found their chapel shattered by an overnight raid.

"God vs. State" Issue Seen.

The archbishop of Canterbury in broadcast services appealed to Britons to devote their prayers especially to the Russian armies. He asserted the war had become a conflict between wholly opposite concepts of man—the one as a child of God, the other as a creature of the state—in which there could be "no compromise, indeed no neutrality."

Cardinal Arthur Hinsley said in a broadcast that Poland had made a pact with the soviet in order to deliver her sons and daughters "from slavery more awful than death."

He added, "Russia or Russia's government we know to have been guilty of great wrongs to others and Poland, also. But a people whose rulers have done wrongs does not forfeit all its own rights. We pray that defense of Russia's rights may help repair Poland's unmerited wrongs."

Hails F. D. R.-Churchill Aims.

The cardinal said, "Our prime minister and Mr. Roosevelt have stated grand aims of victorious peace—freedom from want and freedom from fear. . . . This war, we believe, was forced upon us as the necessary, the sole means of securing lasting peace. Never again must peace be preparation for war."

The bishop of Portsmouth in a pastoral letter suggested the war as an opportunity to win Russia "for Christendom."

"As Russia, under God, has given Great Britain welcome relief in her hour of distress," so "let us pay our debt by giving back to Russia . . . reliance upon God," he said.

Wreckage hammers on nearby bombed buildings beat an accompaniment to the prayers in St. Paul's and the thin notes of a piano substituted for those of the cathedral organ, damaged by bombs.

Dr. J. H. Hertz, chief rabbi, conducted an open air prayer in the ruins of the great London synagogue.

CANADA PREMIER HOME; OPPOSES EMPIRE CABINET

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 7 (AP).—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King today returned by ferry plane from Britain, where he joined Prime Minister Winston Churchill last week in calling for full United States backing in the war against Germany.

King said he returned more resolved than ever in his opposition to an empire war cabinet for settling problems between the Canadian and British governments.

In a written statement, he declared the most vivid impression of his trip was "a heightened sense of the immediate dangers of the present conflict to all parts of the world."

"Developments from now on," he added, "may follow with surprising rapidity. Time as well as space is being eliminated."

Rationing (of clothing) isn't here...Yet

And it is certainly to be hoped that Americans won't need to submit to it.

But one striking effect of it in England is worth the thoughtful consideration of Americans . . .

The fact that every Englishman, having to surrender for any suit 26 of his whole year's supply of 66 clothing coupons, is buying the best quality suit he can possibly afford . . . in many cases a better suit than he has worn before. Thus, he enjoys the long-run economy which only sound quality affords . . . and achieves the maximum of good appearance . . . with its tonic effect on his morale.

A good many Americans could tremendously improve their appearance . . . without spending any more money . . . if they bought fewer but better suits.

Our WALTER MORTON suits are as new in style as today's paper . . . yet so tastefully cut that they won't look outmoded in 1942 or even '43. You can't buy better suits, ready to wear—and you can't buy any as good for less money.

RAP U. S.-BRITISH DELAY IN GIVING RUSSIA WAR AID

London Papers Alarmed Over Situation.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 8 [Monday].—Lack of the much promised British-American support for Russia has aroused a storm of criticism in Great Britain. Typical of these complaints are editorials in this morning's Daily Herald and Daily Express.

Under the headline, "Get a Move On," the Herald writes: "Who and what are we waiting for? Where lies the cause of the remarkable delay in organizing British-American aid to Russia? That delay, the government had better understand, is disturbing every responsible section of opinion in the country."

Rap Arms Aid Delay.

If British-American aid is to be confined for the present to supplementing Russian armaments, this paper goes on to say, "the question at once arises—why is this policy being so slowly executed?"

After warning that whatever President Roosevelt has to say in his worldwide broadcast Thursday night it is certain to be of great value to Britain's cause, the Daily Express writes: "Roosevelt hates Nazism as wholeheartedly as any statesman in the world. There is no limit to his dislike of Hitler, but there are very carefully framed limits on his powers as President of the United States to express it in action. He cannot himself turn his undeclared war against Germany into open war. Only a vote of congress can do that."

Admits Pessimism over U. S.

The Express admits that there has been increasing "pessimism" about the extent of American aid to the allies and the will of many Americans to help at all, but adds: "Pessimism and our own impatient urge to give real help to Russia have blinded us to the reality of what America is in fact accomplishing."

America, this paper also warns, "is now going thru the phase that Britain had to pass thru earlier; the phase when we couldn't get our war production into full swing. America's power of production is greater than that of Britain but so are her difficulties of switching over to a war footing."

The paper cites Britain's experience in Dunkirk, which, it says, "served to ginger us up," and continues, "Yet with all these inducements to hard work we haven't put British war production as straight as we expect to find the production of America."

LAYS PLAN TO OCCUPY TURKEY, PORTUGAL TO F.D.R. AND CHURCHILL

ROME, Sept. 7 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, Fascist spokesman, said today that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had agreed on plans to bring Portugal and Turkey into the war by occupying their territory "to protect" them against the axis. Gayda said it was "permissible to think" the Germans would conquer European Russia before winter. The German army then would be freed for action on other fronts, he said. This is one of the weak points, he added, in what he said were the plans of Roosevelt and Churchill to prolong the war for two years more to give the United States and British time to complete their preparations to fight Germany.

BRITISH JOIN U. S. HUNT FOR U-BOAT IN GREER ATTACK

Escape Chances 'Slim'; Some Say It's Sunk.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Sept. 7(AP).—[Passed by field censor].—British and United States warships criscrossed the North Atlantic today, hunting the German submarine which clashed last Thursday with the United States destroyer Greer.

Some Think Greer Sank Sub.

Many British and American naval officers here say they believe the submarine, which was attacked by the Greer, was sunk in the action with the American destroyer and the Berlin announcement, indicating that it escaped, was intended to cover the loss.

Another theory is that the U-boat was damaged but not sunk by the Greer and that after diving to escape the destroyer it surfaced during the night. Its commander may then have taken a desperate chance and wirelessed his account of the engagement to the German submarine base at Brest.

Doubt Vessel Is in Port Yet.

It was considered doubtful that the submarine had yet made port. To do that, naval observers said she would have to do most of the trip submerged, following a tortuous course to escape the hunters.

It is surprising that a submarine should attack a destroyer. Destroyers are built to fight submarines and the latter have little chance of victory unless their first torpedo hits the mark.

Berlin Silent After Charges.

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—Germany, after energetically accusing the United States destroyer Greer of an unprovoked attack on a German submarine, had nothing more to say today in the controversy.

The official contention, expressed yesterday, that the destroyer shot at the submarine before the U-boat fired two torpedoes was front page news in Berlin papers but was not given big display. There was no comment.

[Thus there was no immediate comment on the United States navy's insistence Saturday night that the U-boat attacked the Greer while the destroyer was en route to Iceland with mail for United States forces there.]

Laval Leaves His Bed and Pays Visit to Deat

VERSAILLES, France, Sept. 7 (AP).—Pierre Laval was allowed out of bed today for the first time since he and Marcel Deat were shot by Paul Colette, a De Gaullist, on Aug. 28. The former vice premier was sufficiently strong to walk next door to see Deat, a Paris editor.

FRENCH REPLY TO 3 EXECUTIONS: 2 GERMANS SHOT

PARIS, France, Sept. 7 (AP).—Two German officials were wounded slightly in a new outbreak of anti-German incidents as the struggle between occupying authorities and French nonconformists continued today.

A German civil official and a German noncommissioned officer were shot by unidentified assailants last night, hardly more than 12 hours after three French communists had been executed by German firing squads in the first manifold reprisal for acts against the occupation forces.

Further indication that the German policy of shooting hostages is not having the desired effect was seen in an incendiary blaze last night in a garage in fashionable Auteuil suburb. Germans used the garage as a storage depot.

The German civil official was shot by two unidentified assailants on Rue La Fontaine in the Auteuil quarter.

Fire Machine Recovered.

The noncommissioned officer was shot on the Rue Daboukir in the Louvre quarter.

The garage fire was discovered during the night in the Rue Felicien-David and the incendiary machine which had started the blaze was recovered by investigators.

The execution of three Frenchmen, drawn from the Drancy concentration camp, was the result of the wounding of a German sergeant on Sept. 3.

The Germans said inquiry had shown that those guilty of the attack against the sergeant, who suffered a slight wound in the shoulder, were communists.

Vichy Sees Moscow Plot.

VICHY, France, Sept. 7 (AP).—Authorized sources declared tonight that the wounding of two German officials in Paris last night was part of a communist plot to force Germany to withdraw divisions from its eastern front to quell disorders in France.

"The order to provoke the maximum disorder in occupied France is no longer in doubt," the commentators added. "Broadcasts in French from the Moscow radio constitute real appeals for revolt."

3,000 AMERICANS ASK CHURCHILL TO REDUCE PROPAGANDA FOR WAR

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 7 [Special].—Anti-war resolutions, which were drawn up by the Rev. Dr. John A. O'Brien of the University of Notre Dame to be sent to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, were adopted by 3,000 persons at an America First rally at Cadwalder park here today. Father O'Brien and Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] addressed the mass meeting.

The message to Churchill, which Father O'Brien said would be cabled to the prime minister, said in part: "A mass meeting of 3,000 American citizens of Trenton, N. J., admire your whole-souled devotion to Great Britain and your resourcefulness in defending the British empire. We respectfully ask you, however, to withdraw your army of propagandists trying to drag America into the European strife.

"More than 80 per cent are absolutely determined not to let our country repeat the ghastly blunder of 1917. You are getting money, ships, planes, tanks, munitions on a scale never granted any nation in all history. But you and your propagandists in America are jeopardizing the good will of our people and stirring widespread resentment by your effort to drag us into your war."

FIFTH MEMBER OF GANG SEIZED IN JOLIET RAPE

Nick Skiniotes, 17 years old, was seized in his home at 209 North Bluff street, Joliet, yesterday, and confessed to Joliet police that he was one of a group of five youths, the others of whom are in custody, who raped a young woman last week near Joliet after slugging her escort. Neither police nor the young couple involved had known there were more than four in the attacking party until one of those held named Skiniotes. State's Attorney James E. Burke will take the case before the Will county grand jury when it convenes a week from today.

A 'GHOST ARMY' OF REDS HOLDS IRAN SEACOAST

Writer Sees Two Dozen in Two Day Trip.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHALUS, on the Caspian coast, Iran [Persia], Sept. 7.—Germans who thronged this coast have disappeared in the last two weeks. What is more surprising, Russians are very scarce.

Russian warships are patrolling tonight off the coast they bombed a few days ago, but a few soldiers and sailors guarding the ports are the only sign of the Russian occupation.

For two days I toured the Caspian coast and saw hardly two dozen Russians and only three Russian warships, but they apparently have done the job they were sent to do.

Only Two Left at Shah's Hotel.

The port of Pahlewi had more than a hundred German engineers and technicians and all have disappeared. Last night I stayed in the gaudy and luxurious hotel owned by the shah, Riza Khan Pahlevi, at Ramsar. The manager told me a large part of its clientèle had been Germans. Now there are only two guests, a Swiss diplomat and his wife who had been unable to get a car to return to Bagdad, Iraq.

With a group of three correspondents who made their first contact with the Russian navy since the Reds began fighting the Germans, I was astonished to find no Russian forces until we arrived at an actual seaport base. No permission was needed to travel along the coast, an officer informed us.

Iran's Peasants Dazed.

Iranian peasants are bewildered by the whole Russian situation. They are dazed by the memory of death poured on them from the skies by Russian aircraft, altho their normal life has not been interrupted since the bombings ended.

The "campaign" which the Russians tried to make out of the occupation seemed comical to everybody. The Iranians made no resistance. They went to the wooded mountains that line the shore here. The local chief of police told me Russian patrols came thru, collected all available arms but let him keep his sword and then went on their way. Most of the towns have not seen the Russians since then. I traveled a hundred miles without meeting the Russians and the hotel manager told me he, too, had seen none.

This coast is a land of few riches. Some rice and tea are raised but there are no great resources beyond the scenery, which makes the area a potential resort spot.

Reds Stay Outside Chalus.

The silk mill at Chalus is working normally. The Russians have not entered the town but maintain a guard around the port. The guardsmen are stern and disciplined but not hostile. Their officers had difficulty reading the pass that was granted to me by the Russian port commandant, who had said a pass really was not necessary.

Pahlewi is the most important point of the area and most of the Germans had congregated there. Most of them were occupied at the ship building plant but it was said that all went away on the eve of the invasion of Iran by the British and the Russians.

SIX SEEK PLACE ON LABOR BOARD LOST BY WILLS

Six union representatives were presented yesterday as candidates for the place on the executive board of the Chicago Federation of Labor formerly held by Charles F. Wills. The election will be held at a federation meeting Sept. 21.

Wills was toppled from his labor board post and also suspended from his state job on the unemployment compensation appeals board after he had been exposed as the sponsor of his son-in-law, Max Caldwell, whom rebellious members of local 1248 of the grocery clerks' union deposed as their leader and sued for an accounting of more than $900,000 in union funds which they said Caldwell had misused.

Candidates for Wills' federation board post are Daniel McNamara of the street car men's union; Barney Braakman, carpenters' union; Charles Watters, painters' union local 147; William A. Lee, bakery workers' union; Richard Rochester, window trimmers' union, and Al Matha, elevator operators' union.

Fortress Bomber Shot Down Off Norway, Germans Claim

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (Monday) (AP).—A squadron of British bombers reached Berlin in the course of attacks on north and northwest Germany during the night, it was stated officially today. Nine British planes were claimed to have been shot down. Explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped, but the communique said no military damage resulted.

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—The Germans tonight claimed to have shot down on the Norwegian coast a four motored fortress plane, but acknowledged that British forays against Norway and Germany Saturday night caused a number of deaths and did damage, particularly at Beckum, Germany, 10 miles east of the railway center at Hamm, and Dortmund, where bombs fell in residential districts.

[An authoritative source in London last night said the Germans apparently were "fishing for information" in claiming to have shot down a fortress plane. The British declined to reply further. The air ministry previously had said fortress planes returned safely from a raid on shipping in Oslo harbor Saturday morning and that there were no losses among other bombers of an undisclosed type which fired a fish oil factory in a Saturday night raid on Bergso Island, Norway.]

Channel Fight Rages On.

DNB, official German news agency, said that the big plane was shot down in an attack on the Oslo area and that two of the fortress' crew were taken prisoners. The dispatch quoted the Norwegian telegraph bureau as saying the RAF raid did no military damage but caused civilian casualties.

Cross-channel battling continued last night and today. DNB reported Messerschmitt fighters shot down three British Bristol Blenheim bombers out of a formation attacking the Dutch coast today. Four Spitfires were claimed to have been downed in channel fighting.

The Germans reported sinking four freighters, totaling 30,000 tons, Saturday night in the battle against England and another of 1,000 tons, west of the Faroe Islands.

RAF Raiders Fire Boulogne.

LONDON [Monday], Sept. 8 (AP).—The sky over Boulogne reddened early today with the glow of fires started by RAF night raiders despite what observers at Dover said was one of the heaviest anti-aircraft barrages of the war.

The RAF assault upon the German-held invasion port started around midnight Sunday with subsequent waves of bombers adding new fires to those set by the initial formations.

While this raid was in progress the Nazis struck back, bombing a southeast coast town, the northeast coast, East Angelia, a town in the east of England, and northeast Scotland.

Some casualties were reported in the southeast coast town where two taverns were wrecked by direct hits and a large number of houses and shops were damaged by German divebombers. One northeast coast village was raked by machine-gun fire and bombs were reported dropped near an isolation hospital in northeast Scotland.

The RAF reported last night that Sunday's offensive operations across the channel had cost it three fighting planes. It also said Saturday night's raids on Germany included the firing of a synthetic rubber factory at Huls, in the Rhineland, and that Nazi bombs injured some persons in southwest England.

ROME'S ANTI-AIR RAID GUNS BLAZE; PLANES HELD OFF

Second Threat to Capital Since War Began.

ROME, Sept. 7 (AP).—Rome anti-aircraft batteries went into action for the second time in the war last night following an alarm signal from Italy's network of listening posts. A communique said several batteries of the city's outer defenses threw up an "interceptive fire."

No bombs were dropped on Rome during the half hour alarm, but Romans saw anti-aircraft shells burst between Rome and the seacoast. There was no mention of hostile planes over the capital.

Only once have anti-aircraft guns been fired in Rome. That was in June, 1940. At that time French or British planes flew over but only dropped leaflets.

British planes did bomb Tripoli, Libya, and Catania, Sicily, however.

Italian planes bombed the airport at Nicosia, Cyprus, the night of Sept. 5, "causing fires and explosions."

Bomb Suez Airport.

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—A communique today said that on the night preceding Sept. 7 a strong unit of German battleplanes "effectively" bombarded the British airport at Abu Suwer [Ismailia] on the Suez canal.

In an attack by German battleplanes on the night preceding Sept. 6 bomb hits caused extensive destruction in the east harbor and the British fleet base at Alexandria, it was said. Planes which made armed reconnaissance over the sea the same night damaged a large merchantman in the Suez roadstead.

Shoot Down Hostile Planes.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 7 (AP).—An RAF communique said two "enemy" planes were shot down last night in a foray gainst the Suez canal area. Other "enemy" raiders were reported damaged.

Heavy bombers of the RAF attacked shipping alongside a quay at Tripoli during the night of Sept. 5-6.

Other RAF bombers raided a number of objectives in Cyrenaica. At Derna "large fires broke out."

GEORGE HELPS A POLICEMAN MAKE IT A DAY

A day in the life of Policeman John Bonney of the Maxwell street station:

He gave a traffic ticket to George Eral, 18 years old, of 1731 South Des Plaines street, at 21st and Jefferson streets.

A few hours later Bonney and his partner, Policeman Tony Bielke, responding to a report of a brawl at 17th and Canal streets, came upon Eral who, remembering the ticket incident, knocked Bonney down.

Arrested, Eral pleaded he had just taken poison, so Bonney started with him in a patrol wagon to County hospital. At Roosevelt road and Canal street, an automobile struck the patrol wagon, injuring Policeman Bonney's legs. He finished the trip with Eral, to the hospital as a first aid patient.

"THIS CAN HAPPEN TO YOU"

If your hair and scalp show the symptoms of approaching baldness, such as excessive falling hair, dandruff and itching scalp, it is possible for you to lose your hair within a few years. Except in a few very rare cases, once you are bald you will always be bald and your appearance will be permanently marred.

Thousands of men have saved and improved their hair through treatment by John E. Warner and Associates, but hundreds of others have been rejected because they waited too long and were told they could not receive benefit from treatment. A private scalp examination and consultation is available to you at the offices of John E. Warner Associates without cost or obligation. Fees for treatment are very moderate and are payable as the treatments are taken, not in advance. The new Chicago office of the John E. Warner Associates is located at 36 S. CHASING PLANES IN WAR GAMES IS WILD GOOSE HUNT

Michigan Gunners Fail to Find a Target.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Winnfield, La., Sept. 7.—Members of the 210th anti-tank regiment of the Michigan National Guard today held a postmortem on their activities in the maneuvers in which the Blue and Red armies engaged. They related a surprising experience.

This outfit, 1,700 strong, underwent intensive training in anti-aircraft gunnery at Fort Sheridan before being sent to southwestern Arkansas for the war games.

One battery has a full complement of anti-aircraft guns and the other is partly equipped. They were permitted at Fort Sheridan to fire 200 rounds in target practice at sock targets towed by planes.

This was an outfit that considered itself proficient and ready to fit into the modern war spirit. They arrived in the south "raring" to go. What happened?

Waiting for a Target.

They lugged their modern guns of the mobile type all over the hills of Arkansas during the maneuvers. And did they shoot down a lot of enemy planes? No. The only plane they saw, they report, was one friendly observation plane.

Meanwhile they are resting, along with other troops of the Reds and Blues, for further army exercises.

Tanks have begun to arrive in this northern Louisiana maneuver area today for the interarmy games to start Sept. 15. There has been much complaint about the absence of tanks in the games held this summer.

Obsolete Tanks Arrive.

Arriving today were 33 obsolete tanks of the two turret type with the 192d tank regiment which is assigned to headquarters of the 2d cavalry division. This division, along with the 5th and 6th infantry divisions, comprises the Reds. The Blues contain the 27th [New York] and 33d [Illinois] and the 35th [Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska] divisions.

One infantry regiment on the Red side has 2,500 conscripts with less than three months' service on its total muster of 3,000 men. Of the 120 officers, 12 are regulars and the rest reserves.

Before the interarmy exercises start on Sept. 15, Red and Blue forces will have a three day battle. Tonight the Blues will reorganize along a line spreading over three counties in northwestern Louisiana, from Ruston to Monroe. Details of the forthcoming fight between the 2d and 3d armies are being screened with secrecy.

Nurse in Movies

LORRAINE MILLER.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 7 [Special].—Lorraine Miller, 19 years old, a nurse from Michigan, went from nursing to acting as a result of her first nursing job in Hollywood. Seen on the set of "Ball of Fire," where she was assigned to the staff of Dr. Geoffrey Grace, studio physician, Miss Miller was given a screen test. As a result she was assigned a part in the picture.

NAVY IS SILENT ABOUT FIRING ON NEWSPAPER MEN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 [Special].—The navy department declined tonight to comment on an incident at Seattle, Wash., last Thursday in which navy revolver shots were fired at newspaper men when they accidentally sailed into a restricted area of the naval air station upon the arrival from Alaska of a Russian seaplane bearing members of a soviet air mission.

The episode drew a blistering editorial attack on Frank Knox, secretary of the navy, by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, whose publisher, John Boettiger, is President Roosevelt's son-in-law. Boettiger's paper said the incident "culminates a long series of incidents of officiousness, stupid regulations, and a lack of coöperation," and charged that since Knox became secretary "and as a result of his woefully misguided orders affecting the press, the popularity of the navy has diminished dangerously."

Questioned tonight, the press officer on duty at the navy department said he was unable to reach Secretary Knox and that in Knox's absence he would have nothing to say.

Photograph Russ Plane.

Reporter Paul O'Neil and Photographer Harold F. Smith of the Seattle Times had obtained a speedboat and Reporter B. B. Berman and Photographer Art French of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer had obtained a larger craft for the purpose of photographing the Russian plane. The navy had decreed that press boats should not come within 100 yards of shore.

The news boats were a mile away from the station on Lake Washington when the Russian plane landed. They raced up to the plane, which had begun taxiing toward the seaplane ramp. Both photographers got a series of pictures, but, in trying to maneuver in between the plane and the ramp they moved closer than 100 yards from shore.

Might Have Hit Them.

O'Neil said he had finished taking his pictures without interference and had started back to a mooring when suddenly shots came from a naval patrol boat. Spectators said four shots were fired. O'Neil said the fourth shot nearly hit his boat. He said a chief petty officer, whose name was not disclosed, told him afterward.

"The fourth was a line shot, and it must have ricocheted off the water right near you. If it had been a little higher it might have hit you." A young aviation mate, third class, said he fired the shots from a .45 caliber automatic on orders of a chief petty officer.

The boat carrying the Post-Intelligencer men, which was not fired upon, and the boat bearing Photographer O'Neil were directed by the patrol boat to the navy dock. There the navy confiscated their pictures, but later released some of them.

LA GUARDIA FOE TO FIGHT PECORA BALLOT RULING

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—John R. Davies, commenting on Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora's decision last night invalidating the petitions designating him for the Republican mayoralty nominations today declared that he "had just begun to fight."

Davies, former president of the National Republican club, is Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's only opponent for the mayoralty nomination. He has criticized La Guardia as a "rubber stamp for the new deal."

Judge Pecora, a Tammany stalwart, ordered Davies' name stricken from the ballot, basing his decision on the ground that his petitions, bearing 13,118 names, were saturated with fraud. Pecora will be remembered as the judge who dismissed District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's case against Tammany Leader James J. Hines on a technicality.

She "just loves" thick, medium cooked steaks with mashed potatoes, and she craves to be a motion picture actress on the order of Rosalind Russell.

The nation's new bathing beauty queen, crowned "Miss America, 1941," at the climax of Atlantic City's annual beauty contest last night, was eating a breakfast of waffles, bacon and milk in her hotel room when interviewed today.

PUSH GRAND JURY HEARING IN FT. DIX SOLDIER SLAYING

Prosecutor Ready for Mazur Case Probe.

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—Daniel Lichtenthal, prosecutor of Burlington county, N. J., declared tonight that he is prepared to present evidence to the September grand jury in the case of Theodore Mazur, a soldier who was shot to death by a civilian policeman.

Meanwhile, John McHugh, the policeman who shot Mazur is free in $1,000 bail on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. The case has attracted much interest since it poses the question of whether a civilian police officer has the right to shoot a soldier wanted by the army for desertion.

Fled Fort Dix Guardhouse.

Mazur, a federalized National Guardsman was 23 years old, a native of Passaic, N. J. With six other soldiers he escaped from the guardhouse at Fort Dix on Friday morning, Aug. 22.

McHugh was vacationing at nearby Brown Mills, N. J., when he joined the military police in the search for the escaped men. He later related that he spotted three soldiers and seized two but the third fled. The policeman said he fired three shots, two of them in the air.

The following morning a woman found Mazur's body in underbrush. He had been shot in the back.

Gurdon Incident Closed.

Winnfield, La., Sept. 7 [Special].—Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear today indicated that the army regarded as a closed case the recent disorders near Gurdon, Ark., where negro soldiers of the 94th engineers and white citizens of Arkansas clashed. The incident at Gurdon led to widespread protests from Negroes over alleged mistreatment of the troops in the south. Forty-three members of the regiment went absent without leave shortly after the clash.

Many of the colored troops from the north now are in this area.

In Arkadelphia, Ark., Prosecutor Dick Huie tonight said he understood that incidents which occurred a month ago were "settled to the agreement of everyone involved."

Surrendered to Army.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 7 (AP).—Police who used tear gas to disperse a crowd of Camp Lee soldiers protesting the arrest of one of their number surrendered the soldier-prisoner today to military authorities at the camp.

Police Chief Charles Ryburn said the police used two grenades of tear gas when between 150 and 200 men milled about police headquarters last night and refused commands for them to "go along about their business."

ANTI-WAR RALLY WILL PRECEDE LEGION PARLEY

Bennett Clark and Fish to Address Fellow Vets.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Two founders of the American Legion will speak against war at a meeting sponsored by the America First committee in Milwaukee auditorium Saturday night. Lansing Hoyt, Milwaukee chairman of America First, said the meeting was scheduled in order that delegates to the Legion national convention, which opens Monday, may hear the views of those against involvement in European squabbles.

Senator Clark [top] and Rep. Fish.

The speakers are Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.], holder of the Distinguished Service Cross and Croix de Guerre, and Congressman Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], Senator Clark presided at the Paris caucus at which the Legion was formed. Congressman Fish wrote the preamble to the Legion constitution.

Expects Overflow Crowd.

Hoyt, first lieutenant in the royal engineers of the Canadian expeditionary force during the last war, said he expected an overflow crowd in the auditorium, which seats 10,000.

"The charge has been made that the national administration, by use of pay roll money, has prepared the way for a resolution favoring war to be steam-rollered thru the convention of the American Legion," said Hoyt. "The spreading of war hysteria and the preaching of fear of foreign governments is not the way of the rank and file of the Legion.

"I believe that 80 per cent of the Legionnaires, as a representative cross section of the 80 per cent of the nation which does not want war, stand firm against meddling in the endless armed arguments of Europe.

Headquarters Shouts for War.

"For these reasons arrangements have been made for the Legion delegates to hear the other side of the question. They have been bombarded with cries for war from their national headquarters.

"The United States is not in war and until such a state is voted by congress, as prescribed by the constitution, freedom of speech guarantees that both sides of an argument may be heard. Therefore, two founders of the Legion have been asked to present the views of the four-fifths of the United States opposed to war."

America First officials have held that some Legion members, formerly strongly against war, have recently switched to a pro war stand. These charges followed those of State Senator Nicholas Hubbard of Illinois that administration pay rolls are being used to assure a strong Legion war pronouncement.

Four Leaders on Pay Roll.

It was asserted that government employment now concerns Raymond J. Kelly, past national commander; Henry H. Dudley of Lincoln, Neb., director of defense in the American Legion; Capt. Watson Miller, who was general counsel for the Legion, and Paul Griffith, who was in charge of the Legion employment division.

Kelly is director in Chicago of the Office of Civilian Defense; Dudley is chief of the veterans' division under the civilian protection section; Miller has been made assistant to Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, and Griffith works for the assistant secretary of war.

FIRST VETERANS' GROUPS ARRIVE IN MILWAUKEE

Legion and Auxiliary Staffs on Job.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 7 [Special].—National headquarters staffs of both the American Legion and its auxiliary arrived in Milwaukee late this afternoon to complete preparations for the 23d annual national convention which opens here next Sunday. Official records occupied an entire baggage car.

National Commander Milo J. Warner of Toledo will reach Milwaukee Tuesday night. Until the national commander is present, legislative matters to be presented to the convention will remain at rest with committees.

Legionnaires believe that this year's convention will be the largest for many years. Reasons for this belief, were set forth by O. W. Rolfe, chairman in charge of drum, band, and drill competitions, and who has been a member of the Legion since it was organized.

Says Location an Asset.

"This year the convention is centrally located, reducing cost of attendance to most of the delegates," he said. "Next year the encampment may go to the extreme east or south, which, because of travel expense, will cut attendance. In 1943 the encampment may go to the extreme west, again adding to expense of attendance for a majority of Legionnaires.

"The average age of Legionnaires now is 49 years, and age has something to do with desire to travel and go thru the activities of a four day convention."

Emphasis on Service.

In preparation for the convention President Frank L. Greenya and Col. George R. Howitt, executive vice president of the convention corporation, have emphasized service. They have demanded that visitors be taken care of courteously, quickly, and efficiently. Their persistent instructions have had the desired effect.

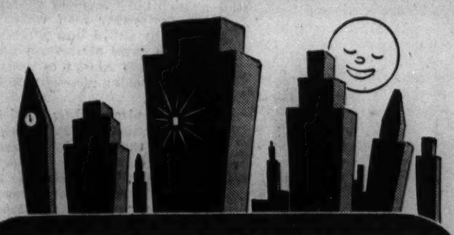
For instance, Elmer Confortl, Milwaukee, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Restaurant association, has reduced details of service in eating places to save time and work in serving diners. Courses are out, and side dishes as well. Bounteous plate lunches and meals will be the order.

Mayor Carl F. Zeidler discovered that the convention's opening day, Sept. 14, also marks the 127th anniversary of Francis Scott Key's national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Issue Proclamation.

The mayor has issued a proclamation declaring Sept. 14 National Anthem day, and he urges every one to sing the national anthem once each day during the convention.

Airplanes arriving at Milwaukee this week will bring more than 50 stars of the movie world, some of whom are Legionnaires, and they will either take part in entertainment programs or serve as M. C.'s. Bob Hope has the stellar rôle. He will be in charge of the program for the annual dinner of the national commander in the Crystal ballroom of the Hotel Schroeder Monday night, Sept. 15.



WORK LATE TONIGHT!

Quick, Easy "Figuring" Test Shows How to Save on

PERSONAL LOANS

with Merchandise Bank's Rate of 1½¢ a day per $100*

DO YOU need money? Before you borrow anywhere, it will pay you to figure out for yourself the real borrowing cost.

Here's a simple, quick way to do it:

Suppose you want to borrow $200 to be repaid in 12 months. Suppose you are offered such a loan with monthly payments of $19.36 (a typical example elsewhere). Multiply $19.36 by 12 and you find you have to pay back a total of $232.32. But you get only $200 in cash. So the real cost of the loan (elsewhere, of course) is $32.32.

Save Half

The cost for a $200 loan here at Merchandise Bank is only $16. That is the total cost for a loan on your signature only. You save about half of the usual cost elsewhere! But that is not the most you can save.

Save Even More with Co-maker

On a co-maker basis, the cost of the $200 loan in the above example is only $11*—equal to 1½c A DAY PER $100. Many people prefer to borrow this way because the cost savings is larger.

Here's another example of the important savings you can make on a co-maker basis: In the case of a $100 loan repayable in 18 months, you can save enough money in borrowing cost to make three months' payments on your loan!

Pay Less Per Month

Because your loan cost is less at Merchandise Bank, monthly payments are smaller.

You can take as long as 18 months to repay. See the table below for typical monthly payments.

AMOUNT OF NOTE	Easy Monthly Payments
	18 Months	12 Months
$100	$ 5.55	$ 8.33
200	11.11	16.66
300	16.66	25.00
500	27.77	41.66
750	41.66	62.50

Amounts up to $2,500

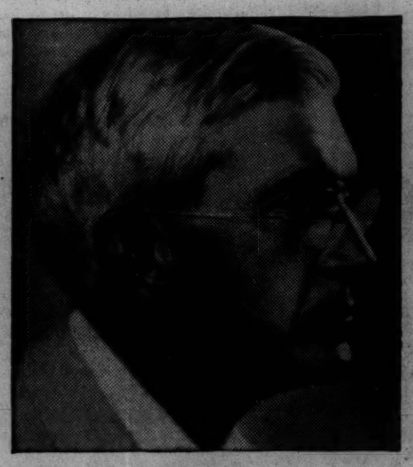
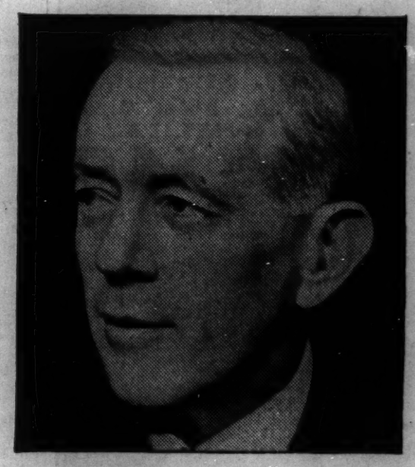
AN INVITATION TO READERS OF THIS NEWSPAPER



WILLIAM LYON PHELPS—The best-loved literary figure in America: author, critic, lecturer, and for 41 years, Professor of English Literature at Yale University.

PEARL S. BUCK—Only American woman to receive the Nobel Prize for Literature, awarded for the body of her work. She also received the Pulitzer Prize and the Howells Medal for "The Good Earth" particularly.

HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON—The brilliant artist and scholar who made history, art and literature fascinating to millions when he wrote "The Story of Mankind," "The Arts" and other great works.



JOHN KIERAN—Well-known writer and expert of "Information Please," this connoisseur of good reading amazes millions of listeners with his inexhaustible store of knowledge.

May we help you select the great books you have always wanted to read?

You are invited to accept a Charter Membership in the new* CLASSICS CLUB... *and to receive on approval beautifully bound editions of the world's finest masterpieces, chosen by the four distinguished judges, for only 89¢ per volume.

THE four celebrated literary experts pictured above need no introduction to you. Each is famous in the literary world. Each bears an unexcelled reputation in that particular branch of letters to which a lifetime of work and study has been devoted.

Suppose one of them were to visit your home today. The conversation would naturally turn to worthwhile books. And—no matter how much or how little education you may have had—you would listen enthralled as your famous guest spoke glowingly of the greatest books of all time, what warm friends you can make of them, and how they can help anyone attain a fuller, richer life.

You would remember, of course, the many times you had resolved to read only the best books. All you needed was someone you could depend upon to tell you how to go about it. And here would be that someone right at your elbow—a great literary authority—whom you could ask about the books that would help you either start a program of good reading or to complete one.

What these Four Experts have Done for You

THAT very question about the best books ever written has been asked of William Lyon Phelps, Pearl S. Buck, John Kieran, and Hendrik Willem van Loon so often that they decided to do something about it.

So they have now formed themselves into a Selection Committee to choose the masterpieces which offer the greatest enjoyment and value to the "pressed-for-time" men and women of today. They agreed in advance that every book finally selected must receive the unanimous vote of all four members of the Committee and they arranged to present these great books to the public through the newly formed CLASSICS CLUB.

Why are the Great Books Called "Classics"?

A TRUE "CLASSIC" is a living book that will never grow old. For sheer fascination it can rival the most thrilling modern novel. In its vitality of inspiration it can arouse a new freshness of viewpoint and a new broadness of understanding, so necessary in times like these.

Perhaps you have often wondered how these truly great books "got that way." First, because they are so readable. They would not have lived unless they were read, and they would not have been read unless they were interesting. And, of course, to be interesting they had to be easy to understand. And those are the very qualities which characterize these selections: readability, interest, simplicity.

It is not necessary to have a "higher education" to appreciate these books; and, after you read and know them, you will have acquired a broader and more liberal education than most of your business and personal acquaintances. You will have lost any personal concern about an "inferiority complex" and any fear about being the equal of others whose "formal" education is greater than your own.

The CLASSICS CLUB is the Only Book Club of its Kind in America

The CLASSICS CLUB is different from all other book clubs, in these four ways:

1. Its sole purpose is to distribute to its members the world's great classics at low prices.
2. Its basic price is lower than that of any other book club.
3. Its Charter Members are not obligated to take any specific number of books.
4. All its volumes are bound in attractive, uniform CLASSICS CLUB bindings, a mark of distinction in your library.

TO READERS OF THIS NEWSPAPER
An Opportunity to Become a Charter Member

YOU ARE INVITED to become a Charter Member of this new CLASSICS CLUB; to enjoy the books which its Selection Committee has so carefully chosen. You will receive, each month, one of the unanimously selected world's great books of Fiction, Humor, Biography, Travel, Adventure, Essays, Poetry, Philosophy, Science, and Plays. With each book will come an advance notice about the next selection, and you have the privilege of rejecting any book you may not wish, and of cancelling your membership at any time you so desire.

Every volume will be complete and authoritative. None will be a "condensation" or a "digest" of the original version. All texts will be authentic and brought up to date in accordance with the latest discoveries about each author's work.

The Reasons for the Low Price

RARELY has such a small expenditure provided so much in book quality. The reasons are simple. The book-club method of distribution, by assuring the sale of a definitely known quantity of books, eliminates the costly waste and risk of overprinting and of leftover copies.

That is why the Regular Edition of each CLASSICS CLUB selection can be durably bound in a fine grade of standard cloth, handsomely stamped, and still be priced at only 89¢ per volume. The De Luxe Edition is so richly bound that it will at once become the center of attraction of your entire library. Its price is only $1.39 per volume. The prices of these two editions, plus a few cents postage charges, will be available to members only.

Each Book is Offered on Approval

AS A CHARTER MEMBER, you are offered each volume on approval. You will never be obligated to take any specific number of books. You may accept only the volumes you really want. No money need be paid in advance. There are no membership fees. Furthermore, you may cancel membership at any time you wish.

The CLASSICS CLUB is a lastingly worthwhile book club offering an economical method of acquiring beautiful, uniformly-bound masterpieces of enduring merit. These expertly chosen volumes will become a complete home-library in themselves. For years to come they will provide you and your children with thousands of hours of the most pleasurable and profitable reading.

So that you may be entitled to the privileges of Charter Membership, may we suggest that you mail this Invitation Form to us at once. Immediate action on your part is advisable; paper, printing, and binding costs are rising and naturally these low prices cannot be assured except to those who respond promptly. THE CLASSICS CLUB, 330 West 42nd Street, New York, N. Y.

NOTE: The De Luxe Edition is luxuriously bound in fine buckram, richly stamped, and with tinted page tops, an impresssively decorative addition to your library. For books which you and your children will read and cherish for many years, the De Luxe Edition is most desirable.*

OUST HENDERSON! DIES ASKS; REDS IN OPA REVEALED

Roosevelt Warned of Four in Key Posts.

American League for Peace and Democracy and the Harry Bridges defense committee, communist front organizations.

Turning to Tom Tippett, Dies quotes from "When Southern Labor Stirs," which Tippett wrote. This book expresses communist ideas. He also reveals Tippett as one of the signers of "a call to action" which is described in the sentence: "No more completely communist document has ever been published in this country."

Co-signers of this document were William Z. Foster, chairman of the communist party in the United States, and Earl Browder, erstwhile general secretary of the party. Dies adds that another signer, E. J. Lever, is now principal field representative of the labor division of OPM at $5,600 a year.

Urge Fight on Roosevelt.

Dies quotes from the document to show Mr. Roosevelt that it is truly communistic. The quotation is:

"We call upon the workers and farmers to arouse themselves, to refuse to be duped by rosy dreams, to organize and fight against the Roosevelt Wall street program . . . initiate and support all efforts of the workers to organize in shops, mines, stores, and offices, strengthen the existing class unions and to build fighting industrial unions to carry on the class struggle of the workers against the bosses and boss controled government agencies."

To support his charges against Palmer, Dies inclosed two memorando. One in Palmer's handwriting, makes no secret of his "CP [communist party] sympathies," and the other, which is typewritten and signed with his initials, reveals his communist views.

Dies said the publication "Friday," which is edited by Mrs. Brady, is communistic. He inclosed an editorial to support this charge.

Henderson Issues Reply.

Even before general publication of Dies' letter, Henderson called a press conference and said he wished to issue a reply.

He said the charges would be turned over to the Civil Service commission for investigation tomorrow and that if the commission found the employés unfit he would fire them as soon as he could get them on the telephone.

He added, however, that "summary punitive action on the basis of one man's opinion is as un-American a procedure as anything to which Mr. Dies has yet given his attention."

As for himself, Henderson said that he was not now and never had been a member of any communist controled organization.

Henderson said he had no direct contact with the four employés named. Brady, he added, was an employé of the consumers' division of OPA and responsible to the head of that division. The title "head consultant," he said was a technical civil service designation.

G. O. P. TO NAME JUDICIAL SLATE DRAFTERS TODAY

Unless there is majority opposition—and dissatisfaction is not expected to reach that height—the Cook county Republican judicial convention in the La Salle hotel will recess today for one week to allow time for assembling a ticket for the election Nov. 4.

John T. Dempsey.

Chairman John T. Dempsey said yesterday that probably the only business transacted today will be the appointment of a committee on candidates to make up the slate of 21 candidates for the Superior court bench. The city convention, which names candidates for two Municipal court vacancies, one of them the chief justiceship, will follow suit because the county and city slates are interdependent.

Dempsey said that he probably will name a small committee based generally on representation of the geographical sections of the city, and, in the case of the county, of the suburbs within the county. The same Chicago ward committeemen probably will serve on both slate making bodies.

3 WAYS TO GET A $100 LOAN
How to borrow cash quickly and simply and repay in monthly installments which fit your own income

CAN YOU make good use of $100? Investigate our loan plans today. Household Finance offers three simple ways for you to borrow up to $300. Your loan will be made the way which best suits your own situation.

1. Signature loans. No security needed. These loans are made, under proper conditions, to both single persons and married couples.

2. Auto loans. A loan on your car may best fit your needs.

3. Furniture loans. Here character and regular income are far more important than the value of your security. Many borrowers use this plan.

No endorsers needed

Whichever way you borrow, it is not necessary to ask friends or fellow-workers to act as endorsers. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your money affairs. You get the loan you need simply, privately and speedily.

You may repay your loan in convenient monthly installments as shown in the table. Monthly installments of $9.77 each, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or as little as $6.99 a month for eighteen months will also repay a $100 loan.

Borrow for less

Payments in the table include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. The Small Loan Law permits us to charge substantially more than this. Some finance companies do charge a higher rate. It's good business to compare rates before you borrow.

If you need money, here's what to do. Come to Household. Or just phone and say you need a loan. We're here to serve you. Phone or visit us today without obligation.

Conkling Letter, Aug. 26, 1863.

HELP FOR SMALL BUSINESS.

Last June, Peter Nehemkis, a spokesman for the Office of Production Management, said the little business man was doomed; that by the end of the present summer one-third of American industry would be up against it for materials. Said Mr. Nehemkis in OPM release No. 571: "It is one of the profound ironies of our defense effort that its total effect may be to obliterate the smaller business enterprises from the scene."

THE TRIBUNE was shocked. We determined to make it our purpose to see that the wholesale "obliteration of the smaller businesses" did not take place. Little enterprises are the very foundation of our democracy, and they must be preserved if we are to avoid Fascism or communism.

Our readers are aware of our efforts on behalf of the small business man during recent weeks. We exposed the fact that defense orders went only to the big producers and that the little producers did not have a look-in. While Nehemkis, Henderson, and the others were telling of the millions to be thrown out of work as defense casualties, we have insisted that this would not advance the defense program at all. At length support for our position came from the highest authority on defense production, William S. Knudsen, director general of OPM.

In a speech at New York on Aug. 13 Mr. Knudsen said: "We have two schools of thought; one school says 'shut down'—if you are shut down you'll find something to open up with. The other school says let down gradually while you are building up defense and we will have less displacement of men and facilities. I happen to belong to the other school, as I see no particular object in having idle men and machines."

The head of the defense production organization could see no need for the blackout of little business, and neither could we. We then went further. A preliminary investigation led to some doubts about the need for the priorities which had been freely imposed. The steel priority in particular came under suspicion. A study was made and in a front page editorial on Aug. 22 we showed that only a small fraction of the country's steel output was needed for defense and that steel was being needlessly hogged, while small business concerns were being forced to shut their shops.

THE TRIBUNE'S findings on the steel supply were completely supported last week when the Iron and Steel institute issued a report showing that the steel which the industry could produce this year exceeded all possible demands, including civilian, defense, and export. At about the same time the Ickes-Davies gasoline scare was proved at a senate hearing to be a fake, as we had asserted it would be.

Finally this newspaper has created a department to advise small business men affected by the government's materials controls about their rights, to give them information about priorities and related subjects, and to bring individual instances of priorities unemployment to the attention of the public and members of congress.

Relief is appearing. Last week the tight control of steel was relaxed and steel warehouses which supply the needs of small concerns were authorized to receive sufficient steel to take care of the needs of their customers. Last week, too, the President set up a new division in the Office of Production Management under the direction of Mr. Floyd Odlum, charged with taking steps to spread defense orders among small producers.

Much more remains to be done to prevent the blackout of our small factories. Our new department to aid small enterprises in this crisis has had a surprisingly large number of requests for help and some who have received assistance say the relief has been due to THE TRIBUNE. Certainly no effort this paper has ever undertaken has given us more satisfaction.

THE TREASURY EATS ITS CAKE.

The treasury department announced the other day that sales during August of federal tax anticipation notes totaled 1 billion 37 million dollars. Total sales this year are expected to reach 6 to 8 billions, more than half the total of the record breaking 13½ billion dollar tax bill now before congress.

The anticipation notes bear interest ranging up to about 2 per cent on the smaller denominations and about ½ of 1 per cent on the larger ones. They will be used by the purchasers to pay their 1941 income taxes when those become due next year.

This scheme has a familiar and unpleasant aspect to any one acquainted with the marvelously tortured financial troubles of Chicago local governments. While the situations are not completely parallel, due to the fact that the federal government has been living on borrowed money thruout the Roosevelt administration, the circumstances are the same.

Local governments once operated on a cash basis. When extravagance outran the ability of the taxpayers to pay, the governments started anticipating their following year's taxes. Eventually that became their only source of revenue, since all their current tax collections went to redeem the anticipation warrants they had sold earlier.

The federal government has been, until now, on a nominal cash basis. The money that is coming in from the sale of the anticipation notes looks like a soft touch at the moment. It has boosted the treasury's working fund higher than it has stood in years.

But that money is going to be spent this year. It will not be available for next year's budget. The anticipation notes will come home to roost then, turned in by taxpayers in lieu of cash. Hitler adopted this same tax anticipation note scheme before the war. It was interpreted then, and properly so, as evidence that his financial structure was being strained to the breaking point.

By the purchase of the tax notes, the taxpayer is supposed to be able to provide for his next year's tax bill out of current earnings. What is more likely, if the scheme is continued, is that some year he will present his notes, only to be told by the treasury department and congress:

"Sorry, we know that you thought you saved enough last year to pay your taxes, but we have spent that money already. Your tax bill is going to be just twice what you thought it would be when you bought these notes. We'll take the rest in cash."

That is the inevitable result of eating your cake before you get it.

TOO MUCH SECRECY.

Since the spring of 1940 congress has appropriated 24 billion dollars for the army as its share of the military expenditures. The results have been disappointing. The complaints are of two sorts, both fully merited. The first is that the design of much of the armament now coming off the assembly lines is obsolete. The other complaint is that deliveries are far behind schedule.

The remedy which the administration proposes to apply is the remedy it has offered for every ill which has confronted it since 1933—spend more money. There is talk now of a new war appropriation bill, this one to authorize the spending of something between 20 and 40 billion dollars. Among the items is another billion for ordnance. The idea appears to be that if the government can't order the right things and get them delivered for 24 billions, a better result can be obtained for 44 or 64 billions. That is like saying that a driver who can't find his way to town in a flivver will get there in a 16 cylinder de luxe job.

The trouble isn't a lack of appropriations. The trouble is lack of competent planning and failure to make the best use of the industrial plant. These faults will not be corrected by voting more money. Congress can do that and get nowhere. Congress can achieve results, however, if it will follow up its appropriations to see how the money is being spent and what we are getting for it.

A most useful first step would be to require the war department to publish detailed reports each month of the output of armament. For the most part, information of this sort is guarded as a military secret, but that is only a subterfuge. The British, the Germans, the Japanese, and all other interested governments no doubt know what our armament industry is producing. The present secrecy doesn't keep the important facts from anybody except the American people and the American congress.

Secrecy protects the incompetent in Washington and in the factories. It enables the ordnance bosses to go on pretending that they are competent to design first class guns and other fighting equipment in face of a record of failure which reaches back to the Civil war. Secrecy protects confusion of organization and bad management in procurement. Secrecy protects graft and incompetence all along the line, and that's all it does.

Suppose, for example, that each month the government were required to report publicly how many planes had been produced and of what types; how fast these planes were, their armament, their range, their bomb carrying capacity, and their cost; and suppose that similar reports of the production of guns, tanks, etc., were required. All of these facts are now more or less closely guarded as military secrets. What harm would result from publicity?

Little or none. If the Germans and the Japanese have only half the spy systems they are supposed to have, they will learn next to nothing from the official reports that they haven't picked up already; on the other hand, the American people will learn for the first time what they are getting for their money and where production is satisfactory and where it isn't. If a factory designed to produce 15 tanks a day produces only five, and those of obsolete design, congress will know the fact and can seek the cause and cure. If tens of millions have been spent for tanks and guns that were obsolete before they were manufactured, steps can be taken to remove the officials responsible for this blunder.

All that the American people now know with certainty about the armament effort is that it is proceeding unsatisfactorily. If we were producing weapons at the rate of which American industry is capable, it is altogether certain that the facts would be heralded to the wide world. Even the burocrats, fond as they are of the dark, would recognize that a factual report of accomplishment would stagger any potential enemy.

American industry can outproduce the world. We have the materials, the skill, the machines, and the man power to dwarf any other nation's armament effort. If we can shake off the incompetents who are holding us back we will go places. Congress has the power to remedy the situation. The first step is to put an end to the nonsense that the facts of production are military secrets. They aren't. They are burocratic defenses for burocratic incompetence and inefficiency.

Editorial of the Day

A LARGER FIELD AWAITS.

[Detroit News.]

The chest X-rays now being given prospective selectees at induction centers are something to be thankful for, apart from the saving to the government of keeping young men who are tubercular risks out of the army.

The first of these tests given in Detroit this week resulted in tripling the usual number of rejections. None of the men rejected had active tuberculosis, it happened. But six showed tubercular tendencies, of which, unless we miss our guess, few of these men were aware prior to the exmination.

As the tests go on, thousands doubtless will have revealed to them that they are victims of this dread disease or susceptible to it. Thousands, we hope, will be prompted to seek medical advice and treatment.

We wish means could be found whereby public health authorities might insure this would be done. The nation has in these X-ray examinations an opportunity to strike a telling blow against the white plague, an old enemy still worth fighting.

SPEAKING OF HATS.

Since this is a hat-buying season for both sexes, and also since the 'at of 'Arry 'Opkins still arouses curiosity, let's explain some of the popular sayings regarding headgear. For example:

Knocked into a cocked hat: This refers to the three-cornered hat formerly worn by high military officers and still in use by admirals; also to a hat of the same type used in French court dress in the 18th century. The latter, called "chapeau bras," could be folded and carried under the arm, and perhaps all cocked hats are portable in this manner. It is easy to see, therefore, that the slang term means "collapsed."

Brass hat: A label of derision for military staff officers with a great deal of gold braid on their caps. The term, applicable in slang to any person of high executive rank in civilian life as well as to army officers, is more English than American.

Bad hat: A person of damaged reputation and seedy appearance, likely to approach his friends for loans. Also more English than American.

To eat one's hat: Out of the vast vocabulary of strong emphasis and asseveration. The classic example may be found in Dickens' "Pickwick Papers": "'If I knew as little of life as that, I'd eat my hat and swallow the buckle,' said the clerical gentleman." . . . Nautical gentlemen often say, under similar circumstances, "I'll swallow the anchor."

Old hat: A term of derision among artists for an old school painter or critic. Current in American and English art colonies, but of French origin. In the Latin quarter of Paris in happier times the term was "vieux chapeau."

Where did you get that hat?: The title of a popular song by Joseph J. Sullivan [1888] and a popular gag for years thereafter. It was frequently used in "Charley's Aunt."

Here's your hat, what's your hurry?: The title and refrain of a popular song by Barry Costello [1904]. Still in use by unwitty humorists.

ATHENIAN YOUTH SPEAKS

Of Socrates, 469-399 B. C.

"By Jupiter, he never seems to sleep,
For, after banquetings when all go home,
I have observed how often he will keep
An all night private vigil in the gloom
Of Diane's temple, cudgeling his head
Until the dawn comes, which he straightway greets,
And, walking off as freshly as from bed,
The labors of another day he meets.
Many before him have no doubt been wise,
And many brave, and many loved the truth,
But he, we think, deserves the earliest prize
For making all these beautiful to youth.
And, too, we youth adore another trait—
He makes talk logical instead of just debate."

So You Want to Be a Reporter!

Arthur W. O'Neill's reference to early woman reporters [Aug. 27] reminds me of a clipping [in my possession] from the Chicago Record of May 24, 1899, with more than a column of type and the printed signature "Edna Bean." Her story was wired from Minneapolis and was about the Presbyterian general assembly. The clipping has various blue pencil markings by Victor F. Lawson, editor and publisher of the Record, and in blue at the top, "a cheap attempt at brightness in the wrong place." A few lines in which Miss Bean told of the women among the 800 delegates carrying wraps and wearing their best bonnets was marked "rot" by Mr. Lawson's blue pencil. In passing the markings on to the department head, the managing editor, Charles Dennis, said the criticism would not apply to reports of less serious character. Miss Bean doubtless was admonished, but she never saw the original slam and she continued with credit thru the pioneer period of the woman reporter.

I who seek for happiness
Walk apart, my only friends
Calm content and quietness,
Beauty's living dividends.

I shall lack applause, I know,
I shall miss reward of gold;
Let the brimming hours bestow
Peace and rest, as I grow old.

Age can never take away
What the years have brought to me;
Still, in every quiet day
I shall find security.

I who seek no proud success—
Fool, perhaps, to loving friends—
Find, each hour, full happiness,
Clipping beauty's dividends.

To Jog the Memory of Frederick Stock.

Peter A. Cavallo, the band leader, contributes this story to the legends of the Auditorium:

Years ago he was musical director of a touring melodrama called "The Derby Winner," which played a week's engagement at the Lincoln theater [now a movie house]. On Saturday night he observed several strange faces among his musicians and made inquiries.

"Some of the boys," explained a newcomer, "pick up extra money Saturday nights playing in Theodore Thomas' orchestra at the Auditorium. They get $5 apiece. We're their substitutes."

Among the musicians who had hired substitutes was a promising young viola player named Frederick Stock.

A Voice from the Black Hills.

With only the four faces of Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson, and Theodore Roosevelt completed, work will stop next month on the Mount Rushmore memorial in the Black Hills, altho Gutzon Borglum's working model called for full bust figures, including Washington's left arm. The funds have been exhausted. Perhaps it is just as well, for if Washington had an arm he might raise it in a mighty but impatient salute to the country he left behind.

GAUGE EXERCISE BY YOUR HEART RESERVE.

WE ARE all impressed with the saving grace of activity. There is something soothing in the effects of that "good" tired feeling. If we can return home after a game with a calm mind, with a glow of satisfaction, and with the consciousness of what a wonderful night's sleep we shall have—the benefits are obvious.

But complete exhaustion is quite different. To give the muscles a "work out" is one thing; to fatigue them to the point of inertia is another. Some of us are entirely too spasmodic about exercise to make it health building. We engage in strenuous sports at intervals only. Then, too, our muscles may be flabby and we may be overweight.

In the meantime we do all we can to save effort. We ride when we should walk, and we have articles handed to us instead of getting them ourselves. In other words, while we devote long hours to making a living, the tendency is to do it "lying down."

Our primitive ancestors, with whose prowess in the hunt and chase we are all familiar, went on difficult and wearing expeditions to obtain food. But they were accustomed to such adventures. They were constantly on the alert against enemies—both man and beast. In our protected, sheltered existence we exert ourselves as little as possible. In consequence, when some emergency arises, it takes us a long time to get into a physical state so that we can carry out the simplest tasks with comfort.

One of my friends, reared upon a farm, went back to the old home not long ago. His purpose was rest but, while there, he determined to show the men about the place how to pitch hay. Within an hour he collapsed with what was tantamount to a heart strain. It will take him months to climb back to normal.

When we consider the behavior of the body, a small amount of exercise taken regularly each day is far saner than sporadic, intense performances. We need to "work" our muscles but we should do so with intelligence. While the heart and lungs will function reasonably well, and the legs will carry us a mile or two without rebellion, exceeding these modest levels may bring trouble.

Boys and girls show extraordinary powers of endurance. They can dissipate rapidly the poisons which are generated by violent effort. But not so the man in the fourth decade unless he has made training his daily goal. Army maneuvers, marching, etc., will do much for the draftees. Most of the operations which these lads go thru are far in excess of what the average well man of 40 could take.

While most of us indulged in gymnastics during our school days, we have forgotten the experience and the lessons taught. We have become lazy. The least we can do now is to adopt some system which will satisfy body requirements. It may take 30 minutes out of each 24 hours, but the time can be spared with profit.

When we rely upon walking, that which is done during the day about our business will not suffice. We need the open air, and an easy, swinging stride, with the shoulders thrown back, the chin in, and the abdomen retracted. No one who is thus maintaining a program of some attention to well being needs to break down with a cardiac attack because he has attempted too much when on a holiday or with the crowd.

I know that golf is a grand game, but I wonder if those well past middle life, who pride themselves on a low score, are aware of the great pressure on the vessels leading to and from the heart when—with a twisting trunk motion—a long drive is executed. The blood pressure is raised and every now and then we learn of a dilated, overstretched pumping chamber because the player was too frisky for his condition.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS, IF?

Geneva, Ill., Sept. 5.—"Freedom of the Seas" as interpreted by the administration in Washington apparently applies only when the British permit. I agree with the slogan and believe we should back it up in every way; no restriction on U. S. ships.

But to date, with one exception, the only interruption and delay to U. S. shipping and trans-Atlantic planes, has been on order of the British. It is an insult to this country to force our ships to stop at Bermuda or Halifax or Gibraltar to obtain navicerts or clearance papers. To permit British officers to board our ships and remove passengers, regardless of whom they are, is the same as permitting a British officer to remove some person from an office on Michigan avenue. Just who are these people who tell us what we can do and cannot do?

Let us have "Freedom of the Seas" and let our navy enforce free and unrestricted passage of United States ships to any port of call we may elect to send them.

"America First, Last and Always for Americans and let the rest of the world go their way."

THANKS TO ANTI-WAR GROUP.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Some of our good friends—among the interventionists—may soon rejoice that a strong anti-war group, coupled with an unafraid portion of the press, has existed during the last two years. Where else would Mr. Roosevelt find strength for denying the strong British bids [mounting greater day by day] for our active participation in this foreign war to save the British status quo?

Peace and honor can be restored quickly—and will—when Europe realizes that America—prepared and unafraid—calls for a JUST peace, and declares that England's air power and her great sea power assure her of no invasion.

Hitler's European adventures will give him enough headaches for many years to come—sufficient to furnish Britain and the United States time to work out an economic plan in keeping with the new order.

THE MOVIE PROPAGANDIST.

River Forest, Ill., Sept. 5.—After listening to the vicious radio tirade by Edward G. Robinson in which he called all who oppose our country's entry into the war, "Appeasers, Nazi sympathizers, and Copperheads," I made up my mind never to enter a theater showing this man in a picture.

If the 83 per cent who oppose Mr. Robinson and other radio and movie stars, who are so blithely spreading propaganda, should boycott their pictures, it would soon put a stop to their activities. It would also be interesting to know the real names and birthplaces of these "Propaganda Experts."

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Our Chicago policemen have enacted many rôles in the past, but when they are compelled to become bullfighters that's the limit.

THE WISCONSIN ELECTION.

Rhinelander, Wis., Sept. 3.—The election of Lawrence H. Smith of Racine over the yes-man, Mr. Amlie, is a pretty good indication of the shift in sentiment in these still United States.

It is particularly significant in that the district involved covers about as diversified a cross-section of all walks in life as can be found anywhere in the country.

Where any candidate avows that he will support any of the President's policies 100 per cent regardless of what they may be, it is like being drawn on a jury and declaring he will vote whatever way the foreman does regardless of the merits of the case. Such a man is not worthy of election.

H. H. B.

Delavan, Wis., Sept. 4.—The Wisconsin by-election was by no means a great outpouring of American sentiment as you would seem to convey. Only a scandalously small fraction of the people voted. They are terrified at the thought of war and at the price of peace; but they discount the oratory of candidates and are sure that blind devotion to the dynasty is opportunism. Seventy-five per cent passed up the voting privilege with a vague [tho highly regrettable] feeling that they were "paired" with others and so it did not matter. There was no "rout." THE TRIBUNE appeals of recent months were scarcely heard. Our fine Republican candidate won with the same relative majority as his Republican predecessor drew. The ratio proved invulnerable to tom-tom and bugle. However, THE TRIBUNE should still be happy about the result up here even if the editor's binoculars were out of focus this time.

I. B. D.

RISING RENTS.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—I note that "a Chicagoan since '72" thinks "rents are going up beyond all reason." Does he realize that some years ago rents dropped to a point where the majority of property owners either lost their buildings or just managed to hold them without profit. During this time the tenants have still been demanding the same amount of decorating and service as when they were paying twice as much. By increasing rents somewhat during the last few years the landlord has been able to realize only a small return and it is unfair to expect him to carry the burden of increases in taxes, coal, refrigerators, stoves, labor, and everything else necessary to the upkeep of a building. It must be passed on in the form of increased rentals.

A LANDLORD.

A WISER FATHER.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Mr. Roosevelt's allegory about the little boy being shot at from the bushes [U. S. S. Greer incident] did not take into consideration the probability that the father had enough sense to realize his own responsibility, having allowed his son to travel a dangerous, unsafe street.

A JOB FOR MARCIA WINN.

Griffith, Ind., Sept. 5.—Your article in today's paper on milk showing the consumers are to pay 15½ cents a quart, the producers getting 6.43 cents a quart. The producers should have, by all means, one-half what the consumers pay, and I will leave it to your good, honest, and reasonable correspondent, Marcia Winn. Let her go out on a good business dairy farm. Check on the capital invested in land, stock, and machinery. Then get the amount of labor employed both out doors and in the house to produce this milk. If she does not prove that the producer should have one-half or more what the consumers pay I am just mistaken.

SAM B. WOODS.

SMALL BUSINESS.

Waupun, Wis., Sept. 5.—I congratulate THE TRIBUNE on its effort to assist the small business men.

Small business is, or should be, one of the greatest avenues for individual expression, especially in small cities and towns; it is the impetus and backbone of the American way of life.

The local business man is interested in all civic affairs, in the progress of his community and the success of its citizens. The store is more than a buying place, it is a community center where the customers and the owner have mutual interests.

Small business is the protection of individual initiative, an outlet for the hopes of rising young men and society against the control of the state.

HOUSEWIFE "BURNED UP."

Chicago, Sept. 5.—I'm burned up! I have just returned from the grocery store and day by day we see the prices of food going up from 2 to 4 cents on various items.

I have an allowance for food that has been quite sufficient in the past. Now I am lucky if I can stretch this same amount to cover our food needs.

I can't forget that all this wild dissipating of national funds is bringing high prices to hit the pockets of the American housewives.

VOTE 'NO-WAR' IN WISCONSIN

SMITH WINNER OVER AMLIE IN CONGRESS RACE

Republican's Edge Nearly 2 to 1.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Racine, Wis., Aug. 29.—Voters in the 1st congressional district today chose Lawrence H. Smith, anti-Roosevelt and anti-war candidate for congress to succeed the late Stephen Bolles, Republican. Smith defeated Thomas R. Amlie, radical Democratic candidate pledged to the support of President Roosevelt's war policy. The vote was almost two to one.

Lawrence H. Smith.

Smith received 29,557 votes and Amlie 16,942. Smith carried all five counties in the district.

Amlie conceded his defeat shortly before 9 o'clock and telephoned his congratulations to Smith.

With Amlie and Smith agreeing that the war was the only issue of the campaign, Smith's sweeping victory was interpreted as a rebuke to the President and disapproval of his foreign policy. The election was the first opportunity the voters of the west had had since the election of November, 1940 to indorse or repudiate the program of the war party.

Betters Willkie's Margin.

Wendell Willkie carried the district in last year's Presidential election by a majority of around 1,000 of a total of 125,000 votes cast.

"I interpret the election to mean that the citizens of the 1st district want an adequate defense of our nation, quickly, efficiently, and economically provided," Smith said, as soon as the results were known.

FINDS MIDWEST DETERMINED TO FOIL WAR DRIVE

Attorney Reports Citizens Are Aroused.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 28 [Special].—"Midwest sentiment against the Roosevelt foreign policy and entering the war in Europe, dumfounded me with its unanimity and fervor," Clarence Kolwyck, Chattanooga attorney, declared in an interview here today.

Kolwyck, who was Tennessee promoter of Wendell Willkie's candidacy in the 1941 presidential campaign, has just completed a 3,600 mile trip thru Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio seeking citizens' views.

"The almost solid vote of the congressmen from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio shows that they had heard accurately and also overwhelmingly from home," Kolwyck said. "No senator or congressman supporting the President's policy could be elected from the first four states named, and possibly not from Ohio.

Interviews All Types.

"I talked to every type of citizen, inquiring extensively about their views, to find out for myself how people in those states feel, including farmers, filling station operators, doctors, draftees, hitch-hikers, to whom I gave a lift and one draft board chairman.

"They were not just opposing President Roosevelt's policies from prejudice. They have two especially strong phrases. They argue that Roosevelt ran on a peace platform and has let them down' and that 'he is pulling us into the war with our own block and tackle.'

"Midwest citizens are aroused to the point of frenzy and they are ready to shout for anything that is printed or spoken on the side of peace."

Shaken, Attorney Admits.

Asked if he had deserted Willkie on the war issue, Kolwyck said: "I am not to be quoted on my personal viewpoint. I still admire Mr. Willkie but I must admit those midwesterners have shaken me.

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S campaign is in line with the popular viewpoint and has had great influence and approval in its fight against the foreign policy of the Roosevelt administration.

"Let me say this one thing for the middle west. If war actually does come, they will do their part. Minnesota led the country in volunteers for the World war in proportion to state population and Minnesotans tell me they will do it again if we actually do enter the war."

ELECT G. O. P. STATE JUSTICE

SEAT CAPTURED IN 2D DISTRICT FOR FIRST TIME

Smith Is Victor Over Dove by 20,000.

BY PERCY WOOD.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
(Picture on back page.)

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 25.—Attorney June C. Smith of Centralia, Republican, was elected to the Illinois Supreme court over his Democratic opponent, Judge Franklin R. Dove of Shelbyville, on the basis of nearly complete returns tonight in the special election in the 2d district. It was the first time in history that he 2d judicial district, in south central Illinois, has elected a Republican to the state Supreme court.

With only five of the district's 611 precincts missing, the count was: Smith, 75,782; Dove, 55,514.

Smith will fill the vacancy created by the death of Justice Norman L. Jones of Carrollton. The Centralia lawyer's victory, which reduces the Democratic majority on the court to one, will place three Republicans on the high bench, along with four Democratic members. However, if the G. O. P. trend continues in the Supreme court elections in June, 1942, the Democrats may lose the hold they have held on the court since 1933.

Carries 20 of 21 Counties.

Smith, who is 64 years old and has practiced law in Centralia since 1904, carried 20 of the district's 21 counties, losing only Christian, the home of Harry B. Hershey, Democratic nominee for governor last November. Hershey carried the district by 10,933 votes over Gov. Dwight H. Green in November, piling up almost all that lead in the heavily industrial Alton-Edwardsville region in Madison county. Smith carried Madison county today almost two to one over Dove and swept the rest of the district, except for Christian county.

From the Chicago Tribune of Feb. 26, 1941

REPRODUCED in the center above is a news dispatch reprinted from the Chicago Tribune of August 29.

It tells how an investigator who had just completed a 3,600 mile tour of the middle west seeking citizens' views had reported that "mid-west sentiment against the Roosevelt foreign policy and entering into the war in Europe had dumbfounded me with its unanimity and fervor."

One day later, this observer's findings were resoundingly affirmed by the voters in the first congressional district of Wisconsin, as reported in the dispatch at the left above.

With the war the only issue in the campaign, L. H. Smith, anti-Roosevelt and anti-war candidate for congress to succeed the late Stephen Bolles, Republican, defeated Thomas R. Amlie, radical Democratic candidate pledged to the support of President Roosevelt's war policy. The vote was nearly two to one.

Illinois voters earlier this year gave similar evidence of the mid-west's attitude.

Reproduced at the right above is the dispatch which told the results of the special election in the second Illinois judicial district held February 25.

In revulsion against any one wearing the Democratic label, the people of this district elected a Republican to the Illinois Supreme court. It was the first time in history that the second district had elected a Republican to the state Supreme court.

Here are decisive verdicts from the people of the middle west—the heart of America, founded by Americans, settled by Americans and perpetuated by Americans who have no colonial history and no colonial ties.

They affirm the stand of the Chicago Tribune because the Tribune represents and advances the best interests of the middle west.

As a result, the Tribune today is the most widely read newspaper in the middle west. With more than 1,000,000 total net paid, every day of the week, the Tribune has more daily circulation than any two other Chicago daily newspapers combined.

Much to Enjoy Besides Horses at Wayne Show

BY BETTY BROWNING.

It isn't necessary to be "horsy" to have a good time at the Dunham Woods Riding club's annual horse show if yesterday's was a fair example.

The show ring at Wayne is set among fields and oak woods not far from the dark red stables and coach house, topped by quaint turrets, and the directors have preserved much of the rusticity and informality of the real country even tho the show has grown larger year by year.

Typical of this informal spirit was the event listed as "costume bareback riding." After jumping their mounts twice the contestants lined up and the spectators clapped for their favorite. The Gold Dust Twins, who turned out to be Hope Casselberry and Phoebe Wilder of Dundee, won the greatest ovation, and Mrs. Charles H. Coffin Jr. of Wayne, wearer of a toy collection, was a close second, Sally Miller of Chicago, as a teddy bear, was third, and Mrs. Corwith Hamill of Wayne was fourth as a tiger.

Mrs. J. H. Backus of North Aurora and her sister, Miss Grace Merrill, dressed alike in beige and brown, placed first in the family class and the Edgerton A. Throckmortons of Dundee and her three daughters, Caryl, Hope, and young Ann Casselberry, dressed alike in black velvet caps, white coats and dark breeches, placed second.

A number of awards were won by Henry W. [Brick] Mears of Northbrook, who brought with him his sister, Viola, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boyd Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Rose Beatty Jr., Miss Lucy Harrison, and Freeman Wood. Mr. Mears, Mr. Beatty, and Mr. Wood were the championship team.

The Don M. Merrils of Wayne watched the show from a high seated surrey with a fringed canopy. In a nearby roadster were the Stewart Boals, her father, Ernest Ballard, the Gilbert Osgoods and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fowler Jr. The Harold B. Smiths, the William Littells, and the Donald Batemans came down from Barrington, and Miss Margot Atkin was with her sister and brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Noyes.

The senior and junior Henry T. Stantons and their guests had adjoining parking spaces at the ring. Arthur Farwell, chairman of the show, entertained at luncheon for the judges and after the show the Raymond Otis Mitchells had a small tea. The junior Samuel Insulls were among those who watched the show from the Farwells' station wagon.

Among young people present were Barbara McNulty and Blanny Wrigley, both debutantes this season, who were with Barbara's younger sister, Mary, William Hagenah Jr., and Anthony Bouscaren. The Henry Ronmores were among other spectators.

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 7.—Lots of local peanut feds are going to be able to pay the feed bill for the next year, no matter what the income tax bite is. Hollywood's contract list is climbing to a new high, and the movies, which have been gibbering and twittering for so long, are spending money. They are going out on a limb and promising 42, 48, and 52 weeks' pay a year to almost anybody who can stand in front of a camera without swooning.

Paramount, after a long period at the cleaner's and in the hock shops, is minting money in large denominations and now has 103 actors under contract—the largest number in the studio's history and probably the largest number in Hollywood. Metro is rocking along with 86 contract players—about the same as usual. A year ago RKO had 54 muggers on steady weekly wages; now it has 92. Even Columbia, smartest of the lone wolf outfits, has committed itself to guaranteeing the wages of a number of actors.

Laird Cregar, Twentieth-Fox's fat giant, has been borrowed by RKO to play a cruel and effeminate gestapo agent in David Hempstead's "Joan of Paris." . . . Interesting item: The controversial "Citizen Kane," which had a few big town releases and which everybody said wouldn't go in small towns, has finally had its general release and is doing right smart in the hamlets. Chances are pretty good that it will win back its immense production cost. . . . Cecilia Parker will return to the next Andy Hardy pictures. She was out of two of them, having a baby. . . . Metro has signed Fred Avery, creator of Bugs Bunny, to work up a new cartoon series character. . . . Wallace Beery, last of the stars to have his own bungalow on the Metro lot, lost it the other day. When he reported for work in "Steel Cavalry" he found his bungalow gone and a big, new building going up in its place. He squawked, found the pieces, and is having them reassembled in a far corner of a back lot.

Like all small towns, Hollywood doesn't know much about what goes on outside. Newest of the night club ventures is John Murray Anderson's "Silver Screen Revue," opening next Wednesday, and those interested in the venture are having a difficult time persuading important Hollywoodians that Anderson is a guy with some background in show business. It seems to mean little to them that John staged Billy Rose's phenomenal Diamond Horseshoe shows on Broadway, or that he did aquacades and Ziegfeld "Follies" and a "Music Box Revue."

Anderson has converted the Wilshire bowl into a theater-restaurant and is putting into it almost the same show he had at the Diamond Horseshoe—a revue featuring Carlyle Blackwell, Nita Naldi, Gilda Gray, Mae Murray, Gitta Alpar, Bryant Washburn, Betty Blythe, Clara Kimball Young, and three Keystone Kops—Hank Mann, Chester Conklin, and Snub Pollard.

It will be interesting to watch how Hollywood takes this show. New York has always gone for something nostalgic. Bill's Gay Nineties bar has been going since speakeasy days. Billy Rose had people flocking in for a year or more to hear Joe E. Howard and Fritzi Scheff sing—Joe singing remarkably well, Fritzi pitiably badly but with wonderful spirit. But the nostalgia market in Hollywood is yet to be determined. Will the night club crowd—the stars who are ridin' high—get a kick out of seeing Clara Kimball Young and Carlyle Blackwell—or will it frighten them? Will they say, "Oh, lawdy, that's me 10 years from now, and let's get out of here and go get drunk some place"? . . . I'll let you know.

Stirling Hayden, who walked out of a promising star's career, is expected back at Paramount this week for a conference.

Visitors Beam on Desbarats' Shining Light

BY JUDITH CASS.

A LETTER from Desbarats in Ontario, Canada, where a number of widely known Chicagoans spend the summer, brings word of a recent gathering there that was planned hurriedly, but that was one of the highlights not only of this but of many seasons. William Birch, keeper for 30 years of lighthouses in the North channel, recently received a medal and a citation from King George VI. As soon as the summer colonists heard of the honor that had come to the 79 year old lighthouse keeper, who retired a year ago, they began planning a proper celebration.

Two New Yorkers, Miss Aline Fox and Miss Esther Waterman, started the ball rolling but before long residents of the whole string of islands that make up Desbarats were in on the surprise. The party was given at the Fox-Waterman cottage with an orchestra to play for square dancing, which is favored by the summer and the local residents. Miss Margaret Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Heyworth, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Palmer, Mrs. Samuel J. Walker and sons, Malcolm and Sam; the Alexander Bells and the junior John E. Bakers were among the Chicagoans at the party.

Light Keeper Known to Host of Chicagoans.

Every one who ever has spent a summer at Desbarats—and there are hundreds here, for the Canadian resort is immensely popular with Chicagoans—knows Birch. He is credited with having saved many lives as well as boats during the years he tended the lights on Sulphur Island and at Wilson channel. As he is of Objibway and English descent, Birch is equally at home in the canoe of the Indian and the longboat of the English sailor.

The Walker family has returned to Lake Forest, for the two sons will be leaving in about a week for eastern schools. Malcolm is a sophomore at Yale and Sammy goes to St. Paul's.

This afternoon brings the debut tea of Miss Carol Gardner, daughter of Albert Sellner Gardner. The party will be held from 4 until 7 o'clock in the Camellia House at the Drake hotel, Mr. Gardner's residence. The bud and her father and his mother, Mrs. William A. Gardner, will receive at the north end of the Regency room adjoining Camellia House.

Aunts to Take Part in Miss Gardner's Tea.

Pouring tea with some of the debutante's young friends will be her aunts, Mrs. Robert H. Gardner and Miss Mary Dozier Gardner. Out of town visitors for the debut are Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner, widow of the former governor of Missouri, and her sons, William and Dozier, and their wives, and the junior Russell E. Gardners of St. Louis, and Wendell S. Phillips of South Bend. Miss Gardner, a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heyliger A. de Windt of Winnetka, is a talented flutist, and has been studying with Ralph Johnson of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Following the tea the bud and her assistants and their escorts will remain for dinner and dancing in Camellia House.

Mrs. Walther Buchen and her daughter, Mrs. Albert Winston, are giving a large luncheon today for three debutantes of the season, Miss Laura Winston, Miss Anne Northrop, and Miss Julie Goodman. Mrs. Win-

Opera Scores on Exhibit.

A group of opera manuscripts of Chicago composers are on display for the first time at the exhibit depicting the history of opera in Chicago at the Chicago Public library. Resident musicians whose scores are on view include names familiar to many audiences: Jane Van Etten Andrews, Eleanor Everett Freer, Felix Borowski, William Lester, and Rossetter Cole. Rossetter Cole, composer of The Maypole Lovers, the orchestra suite from which was first performed by the Chicago Symphony orchestra in 1936, leaned over a case that contained some of his own work, sighed and said:

"The notes it takes to write an opera! Eight hundred pages for a full score, about 200 notes on a page and each one has to be written separately!"

Ganz Conducts Final Concert at Grant Park

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The summer-long series of free Grant park concerts came to an end last night. It seemed high time, too—what with the fall winds blowing and the dampness of the lake creeping up into the park.

The music was good, and quite capable of kindling a comforting little inner fire in each half frozen listener. Rudolph Ganz conducted the Chicago Opera orchestra in a program that jumped from Wagner to Haydn to Flotow to Guion in a delightfully crazy manner. The soprano Louisa Hoe, contributed songs and operatic excerpts.

The high point of the evening—and perhaps of the whole Grant park season—was the performance of Haydn's G-major symphony [No. 13 in the B. & H. system].

The symphony's minuet, which as an expression of a noble and thoughtful joyfulness is quite worthy to rank even with the dances of the Bach orchestral suites themselves, lost none of its air of exaltation at the hands of Ganz and his men. It had a firm, serene line and an intoxicating sense of confident forward movement. The largo was made to sing dewily along and the finale to scamper happily.

The program was nothing if not varied, and not long after we had been lifted clean out of the world by the Haydn symphony we were set down with a bang right in the heart of America. A group of pieces by such people as Sanders and Guion brought to the program the stamp of the barn dance and the earthiness and bubbling gaiety of the country fiddler.

Miss Hoe delighted her listeners with the sincerity of her manner and by the happy choice of attractive, melodious songs she had made. Her phrasing was often eloquent, notably in Nedda's aria from "Pagliacci."

The Grant park concerts were sponsored this year, as they have been every year since 1936, by the Chicago park district and the Chicago Federation of Musicians.

Good morning!

—in which the FBI, gets mighty busy—with telling results.

Now, while this picture doesn't possess much that's new in the way of story, it really has quite a lot to offer. You will meet some interesting young players with whose work and faces you are unfamiliar but whom you'll be hoping to see soon again and often; you'll enjoy the polished support they have in the performances of beloved veterans of screen and stage, and you'll realize that the reason you find yourselves so engrossed in a tale that's not fooling you a bit, is because of its having something right smart in the way of direction.

The hero is a young federal operative, planted in a midwestern penitentiary for the purpose of winning the confidence of an inmate thought to know all the inside dope on a gang of devils who have been terrorizing workers and making off with the pay rolls of midwest national defense industries. . . . He incites a riot, escapes in company with "Sonny" Black, and thru his connection with this critter is enabled to be of great service to his government. . . . Wouldn't you know that he'd fall in love with Sonny's innocent and devoted sister. . . .

Robert Sterling brings a lot to the rôle of Jeff. Tho sometimes he DOES amusingly resemble a belligerent baby, he can be both a fast and tough worker and he has a smile that will get him far, I think. . . . Donna Reed, who looks like a younger Mary Astor, is clever and exhibits a charming sense of humor. Dan Dailey as "Sonny" is scary—and believable. . . . Charles Winninger is splendid in the rôle of a good doctor gone wrong. All playing is most commendable.

The film isn't too long and it will hand you several spontaneous laughs in the scenes where girl meets boy and does something about it.

See you soon.

DORIS BLAKE'S LETTER BOX

Have you a perplexing problem on which you need friendly counsel? Write to Doris Blake in care of the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. If you wish a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cure for Heartbreak.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a boy for one year. Recently, without a word, he left me and went back to his old girl friend. I still love him, and do not know what to do or say. Lou."

Don't let on that your heart is broken, Lou. Find new interests in work, play, and a new heart interest, if possible.

Take Him Back.

"Dear Miss Blake: A certain fellow said he cared for me, but later denied it. After more than a year's absence he came back to me. Should I go with him? I still care. M. M."

As you still care for him go with him, but not to the exclusion of others. It's a compliment that he still cares for you, don't you think?

TWO LETTERS.
CONCLUSION.

Hugo took the letter from Mrs. Payson and removed the short note from the torn envelope. The bulk was due to a small wad of money. He held it so that Kathleen could read it with him.

"Dear Hugo:

"Here's your $11. Thank you bagsful for lending it. But don't think I had no money. I had plenty but I keep it in a very awkward place. My boy-friend is too handy borrowing it back from me. And if we don't save we never will escape from this dead and alive hole where the only ones that got a good time are spoiled beauties like peroxide Carol.

"He keeps plaguing me for the money back and now he guesses where I keep it. He searched for it and almost found it, Hugo, would you mind it for me? He isn't kind and I don't trust him any more, but I go on loving him because I'm a fool, but money is a better friend and if I don't have any I won't feel safe.

"I wish I were lucky like Kathleen Murray and had a good, sweet guy like you.

"Jeanie."

"'He guesses where I keep it,'" repeated Hugo in a sad, tired voice, "so that's why he followed her——"

"And that's what I want to know," said Mrs. Payson briskly. "I'm all broken up about everything and I've no guests at the hotel—and after all this is my money."

Kathleen saw Hugo's lips tighten. She pressed his arm bidding him to be silent.

"I can tell you about this money, Mrs. Payson. The special investigator found it, and it's now in possession of the police."

"O." Mrs. Payson looked from one to the other hopefully. "I'm ignorant about such things. Maybe you can help me to get it."

Kathleen kept her temper and her voice remained even. "Sorry, we're ignorant, too!" She moved to the table and pressed the bell under the carpet with her foot. Susan bustled in to take Mrs. Payson out.

Kathleen and Hugo went back to the living room where the walls reflected the water dancing in the sun.

"Human nature," said Hugo, "how can anything with such potentiality for the divine be so unclean?"

"O, don't talk like a bad play, darling. It can be so wonderful—so gallant, too. Your mother—and little Jeanie who had to go on loving. What irony! If we'd only had that letter, we'd have got you free so much sooner."

Hugo put his hand in the pocket of his jacket.

"Speaking of letters, I put my hand down the side of the sofa between the cushion and the framework to retrieve my lighter and I brought up this note. It's yours—addressed to you—"

Kathleen took it with emotion. "I know. It's from my grandmother. She wrote them and hid them everywhere. As if she wanted me to feel she was here with me in the house—"

She unfolded the twist of paper marked with her name. A little note closely written on the back of a receipt for twelve balls of afghan wool, assorted colors.

"Dear Child: I had a waking dream just now. I seemed to see you here very troubled and unhappy and I was here with you trying to tell you not to worry, but you couldn't see me or hear me. I could see you, but you couldn't see me. It was very baffling and confusing. But I went on telling you not to worry because everything was coming all right and it seemed to strengthen and comfort you. After that the house filled with light and there was love and laughter. So I say don't ever sell Lake's End. It is a lucky house where good things happen and it will always hold my love for you.

"Dont be sad because I die in it. I know today death is only more life—a brief au revoir and a passing. At my age you see holes wearing in the veil—you look thru and such knowledge comes to you.

"But I do hope I have time to get my afghan finished—"

Kathleen gave it to Hugo to read, smiling tho her eyes were misty.

"You see why I love Lake's End? Why I never want to part with it?"

Hugo read the note, gave it back to her and folded her in his arms. She felt the serenity of his deep, sure happiness more moving than reckless ecstasy.

"And do you see why I never want to part with you? When old man Solomon said a good wife was above rubies he was thinking of a slim girl with lips like a thread of scarlet who was going to take after a jewel of a grandmother." He kissed her. "And I don't care if I do sound like a speech in a bad play."

THE END.

"No Light Came On"

By Alice Ormond Campbell

INSTALMENT I.

The blonde behind the desk had shallow eyes and an empty flirtatious smile. I'd been there an hour, and if she had anything better to do than hold a little court of dawdlers and flick powder on her 35 year old face I'd yet to observe it.

Right in the picture she was with the rest of this fashionable American nursing home, planted so incongruously in the suburbs of Paris. O, I'm casting no aspersions on our own medical regime! If a native told me this establishment wasn't serieux I could have said some biting things about French nurses in high heels, with a load of masoara on their eyelashes. I merely report what I saw that bright Tuesday in April as I sat in a grand Louis Quinze chair straight out of the Bon Marche and waited to see Cousin Lou.

The place looked rich and extortionate. You could all but smell the new paint on the columns that divided lobby from lounge, every small table had gorgeous roses on it, and long windows at the back showed a trim, typically French garden—gravel paths, bust of Marie Antoinette, all complete. What I didn't like was the giggling in corners, the preponderance of wasp-waisted men; and as for the young woman who, for 20 minutes, had been squirming miserably on a gilt stool, well, I was getting really worried about her.

Rather frantically she had pushed back her red hat and was billowing up to the desk.

"O," she moaned, "isn't there some place I can go?"

The blonde's eye took on a cold gaze. "The room's just been vacated. You have to let them put on the sterilized sheets."

"O, O, if it's 10 seconds longer!"

"Ten hours you mean. Just you go back and sit down."

As the poor girl retreated I caught the indignant addition: "Why, she can't have it yet! Doctor Hornton hasn't come."

Audible sniggers made my blood boil. They brought the other occupant of the lounge whirling around from the windows where he'd been smoking in bad tempered jerks and tossing ash on to the gravel outside.

"See here," he rapped, marching thru to the desk, "my appointment was for 4 o'clock sharp. Will you kindly ring Mrs. Rentrew again?"

A second visitor for Cousin Lou! English, his accent and the easy fit of his tweeds. Thirty? Not more. And not at all bad looking, altho the way he gritted what was more an order than a request didn't go down with the blonde. Frigidly she asked:

"And the name?"

"Dorsey."

He stood right over her while she reached for a jade-green microphone and spoke into it. A little indifferent French, then she hooked up.

"Mrs. Renfrew is still engaged. Well, and as I was saying . . ."

She turned back to her lounge lizards and went on with her tale.

The Englishman plumped down opposite me and scowled at the copies of Femina and Marie Claire on the little railed table between. He picked up the book I'd just laid aside and flipped over its pages. When his underlip thrust out in disdain I wanted to tell him I'd had to read it because Mr. Goldmark, my New York boss, had brought it to the boat when I sailed and would have to know what it was about; but just then he'd tumbled to its being my property.

"Sorry," he mumbled, and dropped it like a hot brick.

"It's mine no longer," I said. "Go right ahead."

Now that, from a stranger, was sheer bad breeding. English people don't put up with it at all. He never so much as indicated he had heard. Up he shot and did a caged jackal prowl, striding presently into a telephone box 10 feet away.

Well, I could take it. Why not, with my hair scraped up top in the latest way and crowned by a hat even Paris would call smart? I wondered, tho, if his business with Cousin Lou were professional; why he was so peeved at having to wait, and who was holding the fort in the room upstairs. From the morning of my arrival I'd been Cousin Lou's guest, but I'd met none of her friends. It had astonished me to find her sticking close to me before she was taken ill and avoiding other contacts; but then it was all funny, from the moment I had run into her in the Place Vendome.

I'd call by Morgan's bank to see if I had any letters. I'd just given my name to the clerk when some one clawed at my sleeve.

"Gay Ripley!" a voice shrilled "What, not little Gay? Well, of all the ridiculous things!"

I didn't know her, naturally. I hadn't seen her for 10 years, and with her hair a deep mahogany and her face all lifted and ironed and a perfect study in gouache I don't believe even my mother could have picked her out from a lineup of perennial charmers. She gave a small pout.

"Wake up, Gay! I'm your cousin, Marise Rentrew. You know."

"Cousin Lou!"

"But, of course." She took a quick look at my clothes. "Say, what on earth are you doing in Paris?"

I told her then about my splendid job, buying antiques for a big Park avenue firm—laying it on kind of thick, seeing she was Cousin Lou. I wanted her to know we Ripley children were able to have a nice little apartment with my mother to run it; but altho her eyes widened I didn't think she took half of it in. She kept shooting little sharp glances round the bank, biting her lips, tapping the floor with her tiny black sandal. Suddenly she tightened on to my arm. All her small-boned skinniness vibrated. A diamond clip blazed sparks, her frilled blouse sent me a wave of Molyneux Clinq.

"Listen, Gay! You're coming home with me. Where are your trunks?"

You could have knocked me flat.

You see, she was our family snob. All these years she'd been title-chasing in Europe we poor relatives hadn't got more than a Christmas card from her, if that. I wondered if being a widow had softened her toward her own kin.

"I've two suitcases outside in a taxi," I quavered, "but, my goodness, Cousin Lou, do you mean come home to stay?"

"What did you think I meant? Of course you'll come." She sounded impatient, put out—and a tiny bit anxious.

"It's most terribly good of you," I stammered. "I'll be a poor sort of guest, rushing about most of the day. Do you mind? I must just look at this cable."

The clerk had handed me one thru the wicket. It was from Mr. Goldmark and it said:

"Merger settled stop hold everything stop await instructions."

Merger! I knew what that meant. My firm was amalgamating with another big one; it had been talked about for some time. I might be kept on under the new arrangement—and again I might be dropped. For the present I was minus a job.

I expect I'd gone a little pasty. Cousin Lou was watching me, a shrewd glint in her eyes.

"You'll have to sleep, won't you? And eat. Let me tell you I've got the best cook in Paris. Just you run along out and get in my car. Gray sedan, English chauffeur."

I might as well. Particularly now. How the family would chuckle when they knew!

I was still hunting the sedan when out she tripped, very girlish in her smart black coat and skirt, one hand stuffing 1,000 franc notes into a bag. Far up the line of cars a shut-mouthed chauffeur held open a sleek gray sedan and gave her a look.

"Manx," she called, "pay off Miss Ripley's taxi, put her bags in back."

Something historic must be happening to Cousin Lou. She wanted me. That was plain, but I couldn't think why.

Even tho my sudden plight was absorbing my attention, I vaguely noticed how hastily she nipped into her car. Like a mouse into a hole, I thought. I also noticed her relieved sigh. She said nothing then, lapsing into a dream.

"Good old Champs Elysees!" I breathed, and that roused her.

"Nonsense, child, it's all spoilt with these cheap-john shops!"

She was just back, she said, from the villa near Cannes where she spent her winters. Horace Rentrew, her brother-in-law, had looked after her Paris apartment while she was away and was still there, his own lease having expired.

"He's in antiques, Gay. That may be useful to you."

"O yes?"

I didn't tell her that Mr. Goldmark had warned me about Horace, who, like so many gentleman amateurs, wanted the earth for his things. She went on to emphasize her brother-in-law's great devotion since poor Hiram had passed over, and something in her tone made me decide it wasn't as a chaperone I was being taken along, but rather as a buffer. Horace, I suspected, was sitting a little too heavily on her chest.

It's a triple economy when inexpensive meats are turned into all-in-one casseroles, a saving of time, money, and frazzled nerves for the cook.

Even ground meat may go into the casserole, as in this meat ball and vegetable casserole and the lamb and eggplant dish.

Meat Ball and Vegetable Casserole.

[Serves 6].

½ pound ground beef
½ pound ground pork
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ small onion, minced
¾ cup applesauce
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 egg
Flour
2 tablespoon fat
2 cups canned tomatoes
4 medium potatoes
2 carrots, diced
1 stalk celery, sliced
1 green pepper, sliced

Have meats ground together. Season with salt and pepper, and mix with onion, applesauce, soft bread crumbs, and the slightly beaten egg. Shape into small balls and roll in flour, then brown in the fat. Skim from fat and place in casserole dish. Put remaining vegetables in the skillet drippings and bring to boil. Pour over meat balls. Bake in a moderate [350 degrees] oven for about 45 minutes.

Lamb and Eggplant Casserole.

[Serves 4.]

1 medium eggplant
2 cups ground lamb
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon paprika
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup canned tomatoes, chopped

Pare and chop the eggplant, add all remaining ingredients, except the tomatoes, and turn into a greased casserole. Pour over tomatoes and bake in a moderate [350 degrees] oven for 45 minutes. Remove cover and allow to brown during the last 15 minutes of the baking time.

Wine adds distinction to this beef casserole.

Spicy Beef Casserole.

[Serves 4.]

1½ pounds beef stew, cut in 1-inch pieces
2 strips bacon
Flour
1 clove garlic
½ cup boiling water
½ cup claret wine
½ teaspoon salt
6 small onions
1½ cups diced carrots
4 peppercorns
4 whole cloves
2 bay leaves

Cook bacon until browned, but not crisp, and cut into 1 inch pieces. Dredge beef with flour and brown on all sides with the garlic in the bacon fat. Remove garlic and add water, wine, and salt. Bring to boil and turn into baking dish. Add vegetables, spices, and bacon. Cover and bake in a slow [300 degrees] oven for 2 to 2½ hours, or until the meat is tender. Water to which 2 tablespoons of vinegar have been added may be substituted for the wine.

GASOLINE ALLEY—NEWS FROM THE CITY

I HAD SOME GOOD VISITS WITH SKEEZIX IN DETROPOLIS, PHYLLIS. HE'S MAKING HIS WAY, HAS A COMFORTABLE PLACE TO LIVE AND IS WELL.
I'M GLAD YOU WENT, WALT.
AND HE IS LEARNING MORE THAN HE REALIZES. I MET HIS BOSS, CHIGGER. HE'S NO MENTAL GIANT BUT HE'S NOT THE SLAVE DRIVER SKEEZIX THINKS HE IS.
LIVING IS HIGH IN DETROPOLIS AND SKEEZIX'S SALARY IS LOW.
HE'S LEARNING TO BUDGET HIS EXPENSES AND MAKE HIS INCOME COVER THEM. I GOT HIM A SUIT OF CLOTHES AND GAVE HIM A LITTLE MONEY FOR RECREATION BUT HE DIDN'T WANT TO TAKE IT.
I'M GLAD HE'S WELL AND CONTENTED BUT I THINK HE DESERVES MORE MONEY.

Colors Blaze—Even Shriek—in Autumn Garb

BY REA SEEGER.

What's new! Bright blazing color—shrill greens, flame red, burnt orange, blues that fairly bite, strange citron yellow, mustard, tangerine, imperial purple, and royal blue—used for slim daytime dresses, the popular dress suits that are a high fashion success, team of skirt and jacket all of the same fabric.

You'll see vivid green dresses matched to hat and shoes with coal black gloves and bag as the contrast. You'll see canary yellow subdued with inky black Persian lamb fur. And you'll see flame red suits, without anything to reduce the warmth. Formerly color combination in startling contrasts, and even in a clash, marked the first fall and winter clothes. This season the theme is played on one string—the same color from head to foot.

If this all-over wash of color shocks instead of soothes, and if you crave variety, try the important two-somes of skirt and jacket—the jacket in dashing color, the skirt in some dark contrast. Again the jackets are brilliantly alive whether they are of one shade or in plaids of many colors, but the colors are positively primitive in tone—no shrinking violets or pensive pastels.

This enveloping sheath of blazing color is easy to wear; even the all-black enthusiasts approve this revolutionary change. Long fitted coats buttoned snugly from throat to hemline feature large buttons of the same bright color wool as the coat. Suits and dresses also stress that same covered up look.

A surprise combine is the dramatic long coat and dress ensembles—the coat dark dull and slenderizing, the dress an unexpected orange, green, gold, flame red, or gaudy green. Dresses, however, are definitely companioned to the outer coat.

If you take this coloring seriously the accessories are only the limit to this fashion rage. Hosiery, gloves, bags, footnotes, hat and, yes, lingerie can be selected to complete this fine autumnal urge for brilliance.

Understanding of Children Aids Teacher

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

No matter how gifted she may be, no matter how thoroly she may know her subject, no teacher can really be called successful unless she knows how to manage children or, to put it in the more usual way, unless she can maintain good discipline.

What then, in a general way, are some of the things which good child management in the schoolroom, or good discipline, should accomplish?

First, it should establish a friendly relationship between the teacher and the child.

Force should not be used to gain any end, but instead there should be understanding, tactful management and sympathetic advice.

A child never should be corrected in a way that humiliates him, either publicly or privately.

When in any sort of difficulty, whether regarding behavior or lessons, a child should be encouraged, and the teacher should show faith in his power to succeed with himself or his work.

Especially should warnings about the dire fate that lies ahead of him be avoided. This is dangerous to his confidence in himself, and discourages him.

If a child does misbehave, arbitrary punishment is not the answer. Rather, he should be made to feel the logical result of behaving badly, after other measures have been tried.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

Shortly before Labor day we dropped in at a dermatologist's office and found it crowded to the bursting point with 'teen-age patients. It was just before school opened and at that late date parents apparently decided they would get their youngsters' complexions taken care of.

It's a curious thing, as the doctor pointed out, that many parents think a bad skin condition of long standing can be cleared up with one visit to the specialist, and it's certainly hard on the children.

In most youngsters a bad complexion is the cumulative effect of many years of faulty cleansing methods and improper diet. It calls for treatment that is based on careful examination of the cause, and results won't be obtained over night.

A certain amount of complexion difficulty is experienced by all youngsters in their 'teens. But if, over a period of months, the skin is prone to eruptions and shows signs of coarsening, expert advice should be sought immediately. A full-fledged case of acne is heartbreaking for the child and not too easy for the doctor to clear up.

If the child is going away to school, he or she should go well armed with a dermatologist's instructions about skin care and a responsible person at the school should be asked to see that the instructions are followed.

Circular Luncheon Doily

BY NANCY CABOT.

With those crochet workers who enjoy creating circular luncheon doilies, the petal design is destined to be one of the favorites. The petals are joined as the work progresses and then applied to the linen center. A fine, mercerized crochet cotton is used in preference to the heavier weights.

For instructions in crocheting the circular luncheon doily of petal design, No. 985, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York City.

Numerology By Evelyn Holmes

Sept. 8, 1941.

Universal day—A mental day. Use ideas to advantage.

Name and numbers—Last week we considered the name and numbers of President Roosevelt in connection with the recent conference at sea, so let's look at the numbers of the other leader at that conference, Winston Churchill.

First, let us consider the first letter of his first name. W is a 5, or the 23d letter of the alphabet, giving us a combination of 2 and 3 behind that 5. Here we have a highly erratic, mental number for the first letter expression, and Mr. Churchill has certainly lived up to that dynamic 5. His love of adventure, travel, change and his headstrong impulsiveness are well known traits. Those with 5s seek publicity, love to startle people with dramatic action and ideas. That he makes a universal appeal is to be expected when we see that the first vowel of his name is "i," a 9, the universal number.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Despite the reams which have been written about signal cards, their function and their importance, thousands of players still do not appreciate their correct usage. Once more I wish to point out that an unnecessarily high follow-suit card should not be used to indicate the possession of high honors in the suit. In almost every instance this message is quite unnecessary. A high signal does not say: "Partner, I have such and such a card in the suit you have led." Properly used, a signal card merely says "Come on!" or "Shift!"

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

South should have passed to one heart. His too-light response resulted in a contract which should have been easily defeated.

West opened the club queen, and East ostentatiously played the nine spot. His object in so doing is rather difficult to figure out, except along the lines mentioned above, namely, that he wanted West to know that he had very good clubs. Considering that West would have tha. knowledge the moment the club queen held the trick, East's intention appears rather absurd, and the fact that his partner misinterpreted the "message" was quite natural. West, not dreaming that East would attempt to tell him something that he could see for himself, took the high club signal to mean that East did not wish a shift. Since East could see dummy's heart suit as well as West could, the only justification for calling for a club continuation was that East had the heart suit well stopped and that he could not stand the normal shift to a diamond. West, with faith in his partner, followed orders. He continued with the jack of clubs, and after that declarer had no difficulty in running 10 tricks.

East's high club signal, after dummy's singleton appeared, was a horrible play. With no stopper in hearts, East should have seen that successful defense almost certainly depended on snaring diamond tricks in a hurry. Hence, instead of playing the club nine on the first trick, East should have welcomed the opportunity to play the deuce, demanding a shift. West would easily be able to read that this shift should be to diamonds and, if he played properly, would lead the diamond jack so that in case East had the king and two small, and declarer the 10 spot, three diamond tricks could be run by the defenders.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

After 55 minutes of a nonchalant exhibition of their fundamental T formation plays the Chicago Bears, professional football champions, passed and ran 53 yards for the touchdown which whipped the New York Giants, 14 to 8, yesterday afternoon in Wrigley field.

Twice in the final quarter the Bears had failed to overtake their rivals, but the winning attack completely satisfied the crowd of 20,493 which had vocally shown its disapproval of the champions' indifferent play.

Perhaps the Bears planned it that way. At any rate the battle in which each team was guilty of misplays worked up to a climax because of those mistakes. The Giants held an early advantage and led, 6 to 0, on field goals by Win Pedersen and Ward Cuff. Then just before the end of the half Cuff fumbled with the ball in play on his own 20 yard line and when the ensuing scramble had ended, the Bears' burly center, Clyde Turner, was in the New York end zone with the ball. Jack Manders' place kick for the point gave the champions a 7 to 6 lead.

Bad Pass Hurts Bears.

In the third quarter Turner's bad pass from center to George McAfee in kick formation shot past the Bear back and into the end zone where McAfee was downed for a safety and the points which sent New York ahead, 8 to 7.

This score stood up until the Bears' last determined drive. They gained possession on their own 47 yard line after the Giants punted. Ray Nolting opened with an 11 yard sprint around end. Sid Luckman's pass was incomplete, but Nolting skirted the right flank of the New York line for five yards. On third down Luckman passed to Nolting in the flat at his right. Ray made a difficult catch near the sideline and went out on the Giants' 23 yard stripe.

Ray McLean turned the Giants' right end for a first down on the 10 yard line. On the next play, with Nolting blocking the half back, Norm Standlee drove off the other flank for nine yards and then smashed over guard on the next play for the touchdown. Bob Snyder converted for the final point.

Bussey Fires a Long One.

Since the game did not count in the National Football league standings, there was a tendency to use all players and to protect key men. Tuffy Leemans of the Giants, who has an injured arm, did not play at all.

The Giants checked a fourth quarter seventy-nine yard Bear assault when Bill Osmanski fumbled on a fourth down plunge on the 1 yard line. Osmanski's plunges and Young Bussey's sixty yard pass to Bob Swisher had set up the opportunity. The Bears came right back, however,

BROWNS DEFEAT TED LYONS AND SOX IN NINTH, 3-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox blew another game to the Browns yesterday; also a wide open chance to resume second place. The score was 3 to 1, the Brownies counting twice in the ninth off Ted Lyons for the victory margin. The success gave them a record of eight triumphs in their last nine meetings with the bewildered White Sox.

A month ago the Sox led the Browns, 10 victories to 3 in the season series, but since that time have been either helpless before Brownie pitchers or hopelessly nervous in the field —sometimes both. The defeat gave the Sox only an even break with the Browns in 22 games.

The Sox made eight hits off Denny Galehouse, but there was only one inning in which Denny yielded more than one hit. His only pass was the one which he gave Bob Kennedy to force in a run and enable the Sox to escape their second shutout at the hands of the Browns in two afternoons.

A Lone, Mighty Rally.

Here's the way the Sox ducked another blanking: Joe Kuhel opened the fourth with the Sox's third hit. Taft Wright fanned, but Luke Appling beat out a single to Johnny Berardino, who was pulled out of position to cover second on a hit and run play. The bases were loaded after Myrll Hoag reached first on Harlond Clift's fumble. Kennedy then walked, forcing Kuhel across the plate. Mike Tresh tapped into a double play, started by Galehouse.

With two out in the sixth, Clift doubled along the left foul line and scored the tying run on George McQuinn's single to left.

That Sad Ninth.

Wally Judnich was retired after a three and two count at the start of the ninth, but Laabs doubled to right center. Joe Grace singled to left, Laabs scoring the winning run, and Grace reached second on the throw-in. Berardino singled to center, scoring Grace with the unneeded run. Berardino was thrown out by Wright trying to grab himself a double. Rick Ferrell singled for the fourth hit of the inning. Then Kolloway tossed out Galehouse.

The White Sox will leave late this afternoon for Washington, first stop on their final 1941 invasion of the east. Edgar Smith and Arnold Anderson will be the opposing pitchers in a night game tomorrow.

Novikoff and Klein Tie for Batting Honors—Maybe

Lou Novikoff of Milwaukee and Lou Klein of Columbus will have to wait for the official averages, three months hence, to learn which won the American association batting title. When the season ended yesterday Klein had an unofficial average of .3701 compared to .3698 for Novikoff, a virtual tie. Novikoff got five hits in eight times at bat in a double header with Minneapolis yesterday.

EAVES PITCHES, DAHLGREN HITS; CUBS WIN, 3 TO 1

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 7.—Vallie Eaves and Babe Dahlgren delegated themselves feature performers today while the Cubs were doing the final bit of their 1941 chores on Forbes field. The Babe proved himself an asset by exploding three hits. The silent Eaves was equally helpful with a pitching job loaded with such deception that the Pirates didn't locate second base until the ninth inning. The score was 3 to 1, for the Cubs' ninth victory in their 22 engagements with Pittsburgh.

Dahlgren's batting feats included a double and a pair of singles, the extra base tap giving the Cubs an early one run edge over John Lanning. Babe's second single turned up in the sixth following two other hits and assisted in the promotion of the Chicagoans' only other runs.

Eaves Is Stingy.

Eaves, who now has a 3 and 3 record as a Cub, permitted only three singles and one pass for eight innings.

Dahlgren bounced a drive off the right field wall for two bases in the second inning and drifted over to third while Lanning was throwing out Phil Cavarretta. After Bob Scheffing popped out, Bobby Sturgeon singled to right, Dahlgren scoring. Babe's next appearance was at the start of the fourth. This time he singled to left, but his effort was erased on Cavarretta's double play roller to Stu Martin.

Babe Comes Thru Again.

The sixth, which gave Eaves the extra protection of two runs, began with Lou Stringer's single to left and Charley Gilbert's single which sent Stringer to third. Bill Nicholson, back in the cleanup spot for the day, rolled to Martin for the third time but the out gave Stringer time to run home. Then Dahlgren singled to left, Gilbert scoring, and when Stewart let the ball roll to the fence, Dahlgren hiked to third. The error proved of no help because Cavarretta fouled to Baker and Scheffing flied to DiMaggio.

The Pirates' ninth opened with Sturgeon making a snappy stop and throw that kept Pinch Man Leip from a possible high bouncing single. Alf Anderson then slapped a single into right and a moment later Handley doubled to left center, Anderson scoring. Sturgeon and Stringer took care of the next two batters.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

EBBETS FIELD fans, who usually refuse to discuss any feat not performed by their Dodgers, are still chattering about Ernie Lombardi's clean theft of second the other day. . . . They say Catcher Mickey Owen was so astonished to see the gargantuan Ernie take off he just couldn't let loose of the ball. . . . Six camps are sending boxing teams to an all-army boxing tournament in Albuquerque, N. M., next week. . . . Look for the survivors in next winter's Golden Gloves. . . . When a National league umpire was asked why the callers have more trouble than their fellows in the American, he replied: "They have only one Jimmy Dykes while we have six or seven." . . . Big Pebble, winner of the Washington Park handicap, has the smallest feet of any thorobred in training but he can pick them up and lay them down, as the saying goes. . . . Monte Pearson, the pitcher recently sent to the Pacific coast by the Reds, scored exactly 100 victories in the major leagues. . . . The Detroit Lions have 15 experienced place kickers in camp. . . . Now, all they have to do is to get the touchdowns. . . . Nevada and the District of Columbia are the only two areas in the country which allow 25 round prize fights. . . . Eleanor Dudley, whom Marion Miley calls the longest hitter among feminine golfers, sometimes plays softball with the youngsters near the Ridge Country club. . . . Once the lads were playing football and Eleanor, passing by, took the ball for a dash around end. . . . The lad who tackled her suffered a broken leg. . . .

John L. Federovitch, the Bears' rookie tackle from Davis and Elkins, says his greatest thrill in the All-Star game was trotting out on the field before a throng of almost 100,000. . . . A crowd of 8,000 was big stuff in John L.'s campus days. . . . Horace Lee, newly appointed basketball coach at Utah State, runs a day nursery in his spare time. . . . Earl Strader, candidate for the St. Mary's [Cal.] frosh eleven, is no relation to Head Coach Red Strader. . . . Luke Appling of the White Sox says he's glad he's a right field hitter, because right hand batters who hit to right rarely hit their own feet with fouls. . . . We've read a couple or three times that there's a lot of pressure on Bucky Harris of the Senators because the club "never has finished in last place." . . . Just to keep the records straight, the Senators finished in the cellar in 1903, 1904, 1907, and 1909. . . . The team has not wound up last, however, since Clark Griffith became manager in 1911.

Every Mother.

A mother watches with infinite care
That her baby's food is just right,
Gives it exactly the formulae
That are proper by day and by night;
Doling out just the right amounts
Of such and such and so,
That her baby may wax both hale and strong,
And thrive and burgeon and grow.

But all of the time she's doing these things,
That her little man may grow strong,
Deep in the heart and the mind of her
There hums a sad little song;
While she's doing her all to make him grow,
A murmuring voice seems to say,
"Dear God, if I only could keep him mine,
Just as he is today!"

Sorry, Dan, Can't Use 'Em.

Dear Arch: How are you, old scout? Hope everything is going along all right with you. Hope everything is fine. Ran into a friend on the street the other day and we got to talking about you. "Ward is a pretty good egg," he said. "I'll say he is," I agreed. "Arch is a prince." Well, the best of luck to you, old boy!

By the way—I'm inclosing a couple of things for the Wake.

RIGGS SUBDUES KOVACS; REGAINS U. S. NET CROWN

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—After playing one set of great tennis, Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Cal., came apart at every bolt and seam today and surrendered to Bobby Riggs of Clinton, S. C., in the finals of the National Men's Tennis tournament before a crowd of 10,000 in the Forest Hills stadium.

After having won the opening set at 7-5 with a sustained display of brilliant tennis, Kovacs was routed by his determined little opponent, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

The first set consumed nearly 30 minutes as they parried and fought for every point. The last three sets required only 40 minutes as Riggs won seven games at love and dominated the play.

Thus Riggs, at 23 years of age came back to recapture the title he won in 1939 and then surrendered to Don McNeill of Oklahoma City a year ago. Kovacs eliminated McNeill in the semi-finals.

Mrs. Cooke Wins.

The women's championship went to Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke of New York City, who turned back Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-2. Mrs. Cooke already held the national doubles crown in partnership with Margaret Osborne, and she twice previously had been runner-up for the singles title, losing each time to Helen Jacobs in 1934 and 1935.

It mainly was her long experience as a star doubles player that gave Mrs. Cooke her winning margin today. She is the outstanding volleyer among the women, and it was her ability to go to the net and slash the ball away for placements at the crucial points that subdued Miss Betz.

The losing girl tried to win entirely from the baseline. She was fairly successful in the first set, but in the second she netted badly and could not make a match of it.

Pro Reports Bob Up.

There were the usual reports at the conclusion of the men's singles that Riggs had received attractive offers to turn professional and that he probably would do so. The new champion said he knew nothing about it, however.

When Bobby won the title two years ago he was not pursued by the professionals, supposedly because his game was not of the knock-'em-dead, lay-'em-in-the-aisles variety, but rather was a good, sound tennis game that was backed by tennis brains.

DODSON, HOGAN TIE FOR 2D AT TAM O' SHANTER

Toledo Pro Rallies Before 20,000.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

John Byron Nelson, who wasn't born in Edgewater or Woodlawn or Austin, still likes Chicago. The 29 year old sharpshooter, a native of Texas and a current resident of Toledo's Inverness club, yesterday fired a fourth round 70, two under par, for the 72 hole aggregate of 278 that enabled him to win the $11,000 Tam o' Shanter Open, richest tournament of the year. First place was worth $2,000.

Mr. Nelson, who has only won the National Open and professional titles in the last two years, went out yesterday in the presence of a gallery which reached 20,000 and fought his way to a one stroke victory over two of the great money swingers of all time—Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, Mo., and Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., each of whom had 279.

Dodson, who has played for keeps since he bet that kid next door he couldn't take a divot out of his breakfast porridge, put on a show comparable to the 206 with which he led the field thru the first three rounds.

The Birdie Wasn't There.

Dodson was in there at the finish trying to gain at least a tie with Nelson, who already had finished his chores. The Missourian stepped on the last green and surveyed an 18-foot putt. If it dropped he had a tie. He made a valiant effort, but the ball stopped inches short of the cup.

Hogan, leading money winner of this year and last, dropped a nine footer for a birdie on the 17th and needed one more of the same on the home hole, blowing a 15 footer which would have projected him into a tie.

Nelson first came to Chicago in 1931 and had the greatest disappointment of his life—his failure to qualify in the National Amateur at Beverly. There was a routine, kid pro's effort in the Medinah Open. Then came the Western Open of 1939, where he won the title at Medinah. And yesterday followed. The young man averred that he thought he could win after he smacked a No. 4 iron to the 460 yard 10th for a birdie and then rifled a six iron to the 135 yard 11th, six feet from the deuce he achieved.

Dodson Blames Missed Putt.

Dodson, on the other hand, felt that a missed 30 incher on the 6th hole was the one that cost him the title, even tho it enabled Leonard to go to the 63d green with a par 36, which still left him two shots in front of Nelson with nine holes to go. Then came Nelson with his brace of birds and a trapped second from a shaky lie on the 12th. Out of the rough on the 500 yard 15th, Leonard hit one of the great shots of the tourney, a spoon that landed just short of the carpet.

Hogan, who was tied for second at this same figure last year in the Chicago Open at Tam o' Shanter, missed a six footer for a birdie on the 500 yard 15th, the putt that might have lifted him into a dead heat with his old pal, Nelson.

Cards of the Big Three.

The cards for Nelson, Dodson, and Hogan:

Par out	453	444	435—36
Nelson out	453	444	444—36
Dodson out	353	435	445—36
Hogan out	453	444	445—37
Par in	534	445	344—36—72
Nelson in	424	445	344—34—70—208—278
Dodson in	535	445	344—37—73—206—279
Hogan in	424	445	334—33—70—209—279

The tremendous gallery was one of those things you wouldn't expect to see in a metropolitan center wherein golf, until this year, was reputed to be a noncrowd sport. The avenues leading to the first tee were lined with buses that brought the street car trade out—the folks who had to pay only a dollar to see Sam Snead,

BYRON NELSON'S 278 WINS $11,000 OPEN GOLF MEET

Rallies on Last Nine to Beat Dodson, Hogan.

Hogan, Dodson, Nelson, Craig Wood, and Vic Ghezzi play.

A small portion of the crowd was physically disturbed when the grandstand back of the first green collapsed just as Snead was teeing off. None was seriously hurt.

Byron's victory raised him to third place in the money winners since Jan. 1, his $2,000 purse giving him a total of $8,752. Hogan, who hasn't been out of the money in his last 55 tournament showings, collected $1,300. Of that sum, $100 was rated off his second round 66, and the other $1,200 off of the total of second and third place of $2,400 which he shared with Dodson.

Two Amateurs Tie.

Arthur Doering of Medinah, last year's Trans-Mississippi champion, and Stewart [Skip] Alexander of Burlington, N. C., National Amateur medalist in Omaha recently, tied for the low amateur prize with scores of 296, 18 over par for the distance.

FIREMEN WIN AGAIN.

The Chicago Firemen continued their winning streak by defeating the Glen Ellyn Reds yesterday in Glen Ellyn, 11 to 10. Larry Hope's two base hit with the bases filled won the game in the 10th inning.

Lander Tests Billy Seward at Marigold

Eddie Lander, west side lightweight, for whom great things were expected until his defeat by Jimmy Tygh in Marigold Gardens a year ago, will return to the same arena tonight in the rôle of a trial horse in an eight round bout against Billy Seward of Ingomar, Mont. Altho the youngster knocked out Andy Canal and beat Bud Cottey in recent weeks, fans still remember his setback by Tygh and his subsequent defeat by Gene Ward.

Bill Petersen, Indiana Harbor heavyweight, who has won his last two matches, will meet Selman Martin in a six round semi-windup. Martin, who beat Johnny Paycheck in Hammond on Jan. 20, lost a decision in 10 rounds to Lem Franklin in Des Moines last May 3.

Four round matches will bring together Frankie Gaudes, Milwaukee junior lightweight, and Andy Canal; Chuck Hurst, Detroit welterweight, and Harry Eagles, and Mike Shannon, Terre Haute 138 pounder, and Frank Pintero.

Johnny Colan, who gained national prominence by knocking out Steve Mamakos on Aug. 13, will conclude boxing drills in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon for a 10 round bout with Ernie Vigh in Chicago Stadium outdoor arena Wednesday. The popular New York youngster is confident he will maintain his high rating after the fight despite the fact that Vigh is a sturdy gent who packs a knockout wallop in either hand.

Colan, who has seen Ernie perform several times in the east, predicts he will knock out Vigh, which will be a notable achievement inasmuch as the Newburgh strong man has not suffered a defeat in this manner before.

OPEN HAWTHORNE GOLDEN JUBILEE MEETING TODAY

Inaugural Handicap Is Program Feature.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Hawthorne, which first opened its gates in 1891, will begin its golden jubilee race meeting this afternoon. From now until Oct. 11 the horses will run at this popular west side course.

The opening day feature will be the $1,500 Inaugural handicap, a 6 furlong dash which has brought out some of the fastest sprinters in the Chicago area. Smacked, the Arcturus stables' exceptionally speedy and consistent performer, will be going after his fifth consecutive victory. He mastered his field in his last four starts at Washington Park, and was beaten by the margin of only a head in his other effort at that meeting. Racing Secretary Julius G. Reeder has given him top impost of 121 pounds, but Smacked displayed so much gameness in a hard drive under 120 pounds in his last start that he is expected to carry the burden well.

Concedes Considerable Weight.

He will be conceding considerable weight to some fast horses, however. Equistar is getting in at 106 pounds and Agricola at 112. The much improved Doubirab has been assigned 110. A field of 11 has been named in the overnight entries.

The stake program is well balanced, including sprints and route events which may bring out some very close contests. There is a possibility that Alsab, who is making a strong bid for the national championship in the 2 year old division, may run in the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap on Sept. 20.

The many fans who prefer races over the longer routes will have a program just to their taste every Wednesday when the minimum distance for the eight events will be a mile. The $2,500 Endurance handicap on closing day will climax the competition for the route runners.

Distance Races Each Wednesday.

Many of the horses which have been racing at Washington Park have been vanned over to Hawthorne, where a colony of more than 1,000 is stabled. Among the owners who will be represented are Woolford farm, Valdina farm, Mrs. Emil Denemark, Shandon farm, John Marsch, Thomas Platt, Lexbrook stable, and Arcturus stable.

CYO Battlers Get Down to Serious Work

An army of 56 Catholic Youth organization boxers yesterday afternoon started training at their camp in Palos park, about 25 miles southwest of the loop, to repel the invasion of the amateur champions of Hawaii whom they meet in Soldiers' field Sept. 17.

The majority of the boxers left for the camp Saturday in two chartered buses, but yesterday several arrived in private automobiles in time for the first drill. These included the Bausone brothers, Frank and Tony. Bob Hurley, lightweight contender, accompanied them.

A surprise entry to appear at the camp was Corp. Joe Herbeck, who obtained a 15 day furlough from duty at Selfridge field, Mount Clemens, Mich., to fight it out with Jack Ballangee, Teddy Sparrow, Dennis O'Keefe, and others for one of the two lightweight positions.

Clarion A. C. Nine Wins Metropolitan Title, 5-3

The Clarion A. C. won the senior championship of the Metropolitan Amateur Baseball league yesterday by defeating the Tim Ryan Taverns, 5 to 0. The Reckers won from the Red Wings, 4 to 2, and the O'Donnell Boosters defeated the Rob-Wins, 4 to 3, in the consolation round semi-finals. The winners will meet next Sunday in the finals.

DODGERS DEFEAT GIANTS TWICE TO INCREASE MARGIN

Cards Split; Trail by 3 Games in Race.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP).—The Dodgers scored a double victory over the New York Giants on the bats of Dolph Camilli, Joe Medwick, and Pete Reiser today to keep up their pace in the National league's stretch drive to the pennant.

Camilli clouted his 31st and 32d homers of the season in the first game, drove in five runs and made it easy for Kirby Higbe to coast to his 20th victory, 13 to 1, with a six hit pitching job. In the second game, after trailing going into the ninth inning, the Dodgers won, 4 to 3, when Medwick singled the tying runs home in the ninth and Pete Reiser drove the deciding run across in the 10th.

The double victory, coupled with the split the second place St. Louis Cardinals got against Cincinnati, left the Dodgers three games in front in the flag race. Score:

BETTY JAMESON FAVORED TO WIN THIRD GOLF TITLE

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 7 (AP).—There were few golf fans hereabouts today who disputed the consensus that Betty Jameson, 22 year old San Antonio star, would gain her third straight women's national amateur title at the Country club this week. The fact that the field of 122 includes most of the nation's top flight women competitors has failed to daunt the Texas girl and her army of admirers. An 18 hole qualifying round will be played tomorrow.

Don't tell me there are no gentlemen in Chicago; I know better. The other day, on a Grand avenue street car, one beat me out in a race for a seat. After making himself comfortable, he smiled gallantly, tipped his hat and said: "May I hold your coat for you? You look tired."—BeeKay.

Bears Defeat Giants, 14-8, on Late Rally

from their own 22 yard line, but were held on the Giants' 20, where Manders attempted field goal went just outside the right upright.

The Giants got away to a 3 point lead in the first period principally because of the brilliant play of two first year men—George Franck of Minnesota and Marion Pugh of Texas Aggies. Pugh started the drive from Chicago's 39 yard line. His second down pass was caught by Franck for a nineteen yard gain. Then Pugh passed to Jim Poole on the Bears' 10 yard line. The Bears stopped the attack and on fourth down Pedersen place kicked from Bears' 16 yard line.

And Another Bear Fumble.

Nolting fumbled on the first play from scrimmage after the subsequent kickoff and Poole recovered for New York on the Bears' 35 yard line. On fourth down Cuff went back to the 31 yard line and place kicked.

Ed Widseth, Giants' tackle, sprained his ankle and was carried from the field in the first half. Franck also suffered a side injury. Statistics:

MARIO MENOCAL, EX-PRESIDENT OF CUBA, DIES AT 74

Ex-General Famous as a Revolutionist.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 7.—Former President Mario Garcia Menocal, 74 years old, died in his palatial home here today after an illness of two weeks. His body was taken to the national capitol late this afternoon and will lie in state until funeral services set tentatively for tomorrow afternoon.

Mario García Menocal.

Cuba's highest military honors — corresponding to those given a general killed in battle —were decreed for the former chief executive by President Fulgencio Batista. The first guard of honor was composed of Batista, Vice President Cuervo Rubio, Beruff Mendieta, president of the senate, and Gustavo Gutierrez, speaker of the house of representatives.

Son Mayor of Havana.

Menocal is survived by his widow, Mariana Seva de Menocal, two sons, Mario Jr. and Raoul, who now is mayor of Havana, and a daughter, Georgina, wife of Eugenio Sardinas, member of the Cuban house of representatives.

Menocal followed in his father's footsteps to become a rich sugar producer and a hard-bitten revolutionary. He had a hand in virtually every major Cuban political upheaval in the last 50 years. Born Dec. 17, 1866, he was brought to the United States that very year when his father fled Cuba after the abortive Santa Clara uprising against Spain. He was graduated in 1888 at Cornell university as a civil engineer and made the first technical studies for the proposed Nicaragua canal.

In 1896 he was a lieutenant colonel in the war for Cuba's independence and was made a major general for his valor. Later, after organizing Havana's national police, he devoted himself to the sugar business.

President for Two Terms.

When business palled, Menocal entered politics and served two terms [1913-'21] as pfesident. In 1924 his attempted third term comeback was defeated by Gerardo Machado, against whom he was to lead an unsuccessful eight day revolt in August, 1931. He was arrested for the rebellion, spent months in jail and fled to the United States after being granted congressional amnesty. From Florida he directed the campaign which overthrew Machado on Aug. 12, 1933.

Menocal was a ringleader in opposing the "Fourth of September" coup which made Batista dictator of Cuba in 1933, but supported him for president in 1940, despite death threats for switching his allegiance from Grau San Martin.

DIES OF WOUNDS AFTER GUN FIGHT IN REALTY OFFICE

Stanley Sinder, 44 years old, 2732 Pershing road, died last night in Bridewell hospital of three bullet wounds suffered in an altercation Friday with Marion Bissell, 58, in Bissell's real estate office at 3558 Archer avenue. Sinder formerly worked as a salesman for Bissell. The shooting occurred over Sinder's claim that Bissell owed him $2,000 in commissions. Bissell was released from police custody on a $10,000 bond 15 minutes before Sinder died. He was rearrested half an hour later. He lives at 1901 34th place.

MOCK INVASION BY 'CHUTISTS IS AIR SHOW CLIMAX

Nearly 50,000 persons attended an air show yesterday afternoon at Rubinkam airport, 159th street and Kedzie avenue to watch an exhibition of acrobatic flying, military maneuvers, glider, and sailplane exhibitions, and a mock invasion by parachute and glider troops.

The show was sponsored by Aviation post 651 of the American Legion to advance army and navy air corps recruiting. A flight of nine of the navy's famous "yellow perils," primary training ships from Glenview Naval Reserve Air base, performed maneuvers under the command of Commander Richard K. Gaines. Arrival of a squadron of army pursuit planes from Selfridge field, Mich., was prevented by last minute orders which sent them on a training flight.

Miss Mary Beritich, 25 years old, of 7223 South Halsted street, won a trophy for outpointing other members of the Chicago Girls Flying club in a spot landing contest. Parachute and glider "invader" troops who captured and blew up a small house on the field climaxed the program.

WEARER OF NAVY FLYER'S UNIFORM QUIZZED BY FBI

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday were holding for questioning a man arrested in the loop while wearing the uniform of a lieutenant in the navy air corps. He gave his name as Thomas Cotter, 27 years old, of 6950 Schubert avenue. Commander B. O. Wells, chief intelligence officer of the 9th naval district, said Cotter was arrested after ordering two complete air service uniforms from a military tailor here. The impersonation apparently was for the purpose of passing bogus checks, and no espionage is involved, Commander Wells said.

GOVERNOR VISITS SITE OF ILLINOIS ORDNANCE PLANT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Anna, Ill., Sept. 7.—Gov. Dwight H. Green drove thru "Egypt" this hot afternoon, inspecting southern Illinois state institutions and armament projects, with an exciting interlude at Crab Orchard lake where he piloted a speed boat 45 miles an hour.

Congressman C. W. Bishop [R., Carterville] next took the governor to the site of the Illinois ordnance works near Carterville, a 40 million dollar shell and bomb loading project on which work started three weeks ago. About 12,000 persons from this area will be employed on this construction, Bishop told the governor, and 8,000 will work regularly when it is completed.

Bishop said the plant was located near Carterville because of the unemployment situation prevailing in southern Illinois. More than 190,000 persons live within a 25 mile radius of Carterville and 30,000 of them are without work, he declared.

2 ARMY OFFICERS KILLED IN CRASH OF BLAZING PLANE

Rockville, Ind., Sept. 7 (AP).—A two-place army plane plunged into a woods early today near Vivalia, southeast of here, and killed Lieut. Col. Rufus B. Davidson, 48, and Maj. Fred Murcheson, 43, both of Scott field, Illinois.

Arrow locates Vivalia.

The crash occurred at the height of a violent thunderstorm, just at daybreak. A farmer named Ragsdale, living near the woods, said there was "a red glow" in the plane before it smashed thru the trees. The farmer said the plane circled his house twice before the plunge.

Part of the widely scattered wreckage caught fire. Lieut. Col. Davidson's body was burned.

The victims, both experienced flyers, left Scott field at 6:45 p. m. yesterday on a routine flight to Patterson field, Ohio.

Investigators from Schoen field, Indianapolis, today opened an inquiry.

SENATE TO QUIZ FILM NOTABLES ON PROPAGANDA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP).—Men of prominence in the motion picture industry will be called upon by a senate committee this week to answer accusations that the films have been used to spread propaganda favoring United States entry into the war.

Hearings, scheduled to open Tuesday, also will cover allegations that the radio industry has engaged in propaganda for war.

Chairman D. Worth Clark [D., Idaho] of the five man investigating group said today the first witnesses would be Senators Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] and Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.], critics of administration foreign policy. Nye and Clark are authors of a resolution asking the inquiry.

The two senators will be followed by leaders of the film industry, including Nicholas Schenck, Harry Warner, Barney Balaban, Darryl Zanuck and Alexander Korda. Chairman Clark said he had no immediate plans to call any motion picture actors or actresses, but added that this might be necessary if any films were found to contain war propaganda.

GIRL SWIMMER RESCUED; SO IS BOY CANOEIST

Two persons were rescued from Lake Michigan on the north side yesterday. Norbert Fijolek, 18 years old, 639 North Lawndale avenue, was saved when a kayak overturned. Miss Florence Hammond, 19, of 811 Dobson street, Evanston, swimming off Rogers avenue, was rescued when she was caught in an undertow.

Fijolek, riding in the boat with Helmut Braun, 24 of 114 South Homan avenue, was towed ashore by Braun after the kayak overturned and two makeshift life preservers were not buoyant enough to sustain him. The rescue occurred off Diversey avenue.

Miss Hammond was saved by D. Gilbert Mason, 46, of 7677 Rogers avenue, who was playing chess on the beach when she screamed for aid. Mason ran out the breakwater, dived after her, calmed her, and brought her to the breakwater, where spectators pulled her ashore.

Kay Willett, 7, of 6445 North Artesian avenue, was rescued from Lake Springfield yesterday by Roger Welch of Springfield after the wash from an excursion launch overturned a motorboat in which the child was riding with her mother, Mrs. Roy Willett.

2 PLANES TURN BATHING BEACH INTO AN AIRPORT

Bathers at the 78th street beach were startled yesterday when two planes landed on the beach within an hour.

The first, a Piper Cruiser with two passengers, piloted by Albert Holstrom, 30 years old, of the west side Ashburn airport, made a forced landing because of a low oil supply. Holstrom summoned the plane's owner, Leonard Valle, who flew to the beach in a Piper Cub with the necessary oil.

Permission was obtained from the Civil Aeronautics authority to fly both planes off the beach.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

CAPITAL ROLLS IN SEA OF PAPER, BUT BUYS MORE

Government Drains Needed Stocks.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

With Washington wallowing in a sea of paper, government consumption of all types of paper this year is expected to reach 4 million tons, or about 20 per cent of the nation's producing capacity, trade experts reported yesterday.

The flood of paper that flows from the multitude of government offices in the form of bulletins, press releases, pamphlets, orders, application blanks, copies of speeches, instructions, and publications, has drained paper mills of supplies.

Commercial requirements have been pushed aside by the leverage of mass buying power and official pressure which the government can exert, paper merchants asserted.

Deliveries Far Behind.

Paper mills are 60 to 90 days behind on deliveries, some have scheduled their production for the rest of the year, and others are no longer accepting new orders, it was reported. The immense government buying has proved too great a load for an industry that once was plagued by excess capacity.

The scarcity of certain types of paper—sulphite paper used for inexpensive writing stationery and mimeographing, and kraft paper for wrapping and bags—has become so critical that commercial users have had to accept deliveries on a delayed schedule and in rationed allotments.

"We have to keep our customers on rations," said one leading Chicago jobber, "because that is the way we are getting supplies from the mills.

"The trouble is largely the result of the government's heavy purchases. But there is also a form of hysteria buying. Customers who usually bought only a month's supply are now buying ahead for several months and in quantities sometimes twice or three times normal needs. They are afraid they won't be able to get their requirements if they don't stock up now."

The buying wave was attributed by one paper company official to predictions by Office of Production Management experts that the government will be taking 35 per cent of the paper mills output next year and as much as 50 per cent in 1943.

Additional dislocation of the paper production schedules has resulted from difficulty experienced by the mills in getting new machinery and replacement parts subject to priorities.

Wrapping Paper Scarce.

The most severe shortages outside of the writing paper field have occurred in wrapping paper and paperboard, used in boxes and cartons. The steel industry uses about 45,000 tons of kraft paper a year for interleaving between tin plated or stainless steel sheets and plates. The record operations of the steel industry have expanded the use of this paper.

NEARLY HALF MILLION JOBS ARE REPORTED FILLED DURING JULY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—Nearly half a million armament and non-defense jobs were filled during July, a month in which job placements generally decline, Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, announced today.

The 499,000 placements made in July were 6 per cent more than during June and 62 per cent above July, 1940. During the first seven months of this year placements were approximately 3,000,000 as compared with 1,900,000 during the same period of 1940.

Illinois placements numbered 22,142 during July.

ARMS, FEDERAL OFFICIALS SPLIT OVER PIPE LINE

Viewed as Big Waste of Steel Supply.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP).—A bitter dispute over proposed construction of the world's largest oil carrying pipeline was developing today between high ranking armament and administration officials.

Opposition to the project, intended to meet what the office of defense petroleum coördinator says is a gasoline and oil shortage on the east coast, came from Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission; Ralph W. Budd, defense transportation commissioner, and spokesmen for the railroad and ship industries.

Supporting the project were Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes; Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum coördinator, and many of the large oil companies.

Hearing Reveals Dispute.

The dispute came into public attention at hearings by the special senate committee investigating petroleum shortages. Senator Francis Maloney [D., Conn.], chairman, said that the senate group may be forced to take part in the pipeline controversy.

Admiral Land, contending that such a line would take 750,000 tons of steel, asserted:

"If this steel is going to come from navy ships or my ships, then I'm against it." He offered a substitute proposal for building oil carrying barges that would require much less steel.

Budd and other railroad executives testified that they were unable to get steel needed to repair and build new freight cars, and that use of a surplus of 20,000 railroad tank cars would eliminate immediate need for the pipeline.

Would Be Useless Later.

They said that with return of normal times tanker ships would carry all petroleum needed at much lower rates and the pipeline would be useless unless converted into a natural gas carrier, as suggested by Davies.

Davies, former official of the Standard Oil Company of California, told senators that a pipeline 1,800 miles long, extending from Texas and Louisiana oil fields to the eastern coast, could end the reported eastern gasoline and oil shortage. He said that a crude oil line would bring 250,000 barrels daily to the east, or much more than some of the estimates on the daily shortage.

REPORT CLUB WIELDED

Washington, Sept. 7 [Special].—Harold L. Ickes, in his rôle as petroleum coördinator, will soon step into the spotlight and blandly announce that, thanks to the cheerful coöperation of the great oil companies, an $80,000,000 pipeline, capable of delivering 250,000 barrels of oil a day from Texan oil fields to terminal points at Bayonne, N. J., and Philadelphia, will be swiftly constructed, it was reported today.

The oil magnates will take their bow and smile bravely—but behind the deal is the unpublished story of the Ickes 48 hour ultimatum, it was said. According to the report, Ickes, with the direct diplomacy of a 20 ton tank and the persuasiveness of a blackjack, won the agreement of the oil companies with the cold turkey statement that if they didn't play ball according to the rules, Ickes would take over the distribution of oil for the duration and the boys could worry about getting it back when the days of peace return.

Ickes gave them just two days to sign on the dotted line. They signed.

★SMALL BUSINESS★ MAN'S DEPARTMENT

This department is prepared to help the small business man who is seeking information on priorities, substitute materials, and related subjects. Inquiries should be directed to the Small Business Man's department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. All inquiries will be given careful attention. Letters on subjects of broad interest will be published and commented upon.

A manufacturer of copper coils for refrigerators, who will have to shut down in four months because he cannot obtain metal, yesterday urged an expansion of the copper supply by government subsidies to the dormant mines in upper Michigan.

Financing of the reopening of these mines with government funds would be less costly than continued expenditures on WPA projects to provide employment for workers who at one time were self supporting, asserted Lyman B. Betz, president of the Betz corporation, Hammond, Ind.

Would Save Some Industries.

"On a recent trip thru the upper peninsula I saw numerous copper mines, now shut down but once busy and profitable ventures," he said. "The towns which once thrived on the pay rolls of these mines are now semighost towns dependent almost wholly on WPA funds."

Betz said that the promise of higher prices for copper, now fixed at 12 cents a pound, would revive copper production in Michigan and develop enough output to supply many manufacturers dependent on copper who otherwise will be wiped out by priorities.

PRIORITIES OFFICERS.

Can you give me the list of contracting officers who are authorized to assign automatic priorities on items in the critical list?

Answer: The contracting officers for the United States army in Chicago are:

Quartermaster corps, Lieut. F. C. Basler, 1819 West Pershing road.

Engineer corps, Maj. Hocker, United States postoffice, room 1117.

Medical department, Maj. E. A. Shea, United States postoffice, room 1205.

Air corps, D. G. Kingsley, 20 North Wacker drive.

Zone construction quartermaster, Col. Actell, 20 North Wacker drive.

Ordnance department, Lieut. B. L. Gordon, 38 South Dearborn street.

Signal corps, Lieut. E. F. Greenfield, 1819 West Pershing road.

Chemical warfare service, Lieut. W. E. Spicer, 20 North Wacker drive.

For the navy: Material inspection, Lieutenant Commander Huntoon, room 1330, Board of Trade building.

VACANT WAREHOUSE.

I have a building which is suitable for warehouse purposes and is available about four or five months of the year. How can I offer this space to government agencies?

Answer: The transportation division of the Office for Emergency Management is conducting a survey of possible warehouse space thruout the nation. Harry D. Crooks, consultant on warehousing, is in charge of the survey. You may register with him.

HEALTH SUPPLIES.

I have been encountering difficulty in getting supplies for the manufacture of surgical and dental instruments. Atlho I use only small quantities of certain alloy metals, I find that my suppliers cannot fill my requirements. I heard recently that some special preference would be given to companies in my line? Is there anything to it?

Answer: As a precautionary measure to insure an adequate supply of medical, surgical, and dental needs to protect health, the priorities division has developed the health supplies rating plan.

A rating of A-10 may be employed on 14 classes of materials: adhesive plasters, anesthesia apparatus and supplies, biologicals, antitoxins and serums, clinical thermometers, diagnostic instruments, hospital laboratory equipment and supplies, hospital operating room equipment, hypodermic syringes and needles, surgical and dental instruments, medicinal chemicals, rubber hospital sundries, sterilizers for hospital use, surgical dressings, and X-ray equipment and supplies.

If you make one or more of these items, you should make written application to the health supplies section, Office of Production Management, Washington, D. C., for form PD-79, and also file a detailed list of finished products included in the 14 covered by the plan.

Divert Flow of Steel

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7 (AP).—One effect of information obtained under new steel priorities program has been to reduce shipments to consumers with large inventories, the magazine Steel reported today.

Some consumers were refused September tonnage because their reports indicated sufficient steel on hand for the entire month, the trade publication said. Strict inventory control is expected to prevent uneven distribution.

"Unbalanced deliveries have caused accumulations by the army and navy and other consumers while material was lacking for other defense purposes," the review said.

PRICE CONTROL IS ASSAILED AS 'NEW INTRUSION'

Public Co-operation Needed, Says Dewey.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—Representative Charles S. Dewey [R., Ill.] asserted in a radio speech tonight that prices can be kept in control only by the coöperation of the whole people—not by regimentation.

Rep. Charles S. Dewey.

Dewey participated in a radio forum on the administration's dictatorial price control bill. Other speakers on the program, which was broadcast over the Mutual network, were Leon Henderson, the administration's price fixer; Donald M. Nelson, executive director of the new Supply Priorities and Allocations board, and Representative Robert W. Kean [R., N. J.].

"Just Another Intrusion."

Dewey said he believed that the price control bill would be just another intrusion by the federal government into the private rights of the people under the guise of a war emergency.

"The people's bread, the people's shelter, and other ordinary necessities must be kept in equitable relation to the real value of the dollar they earn," he said. "I do not believe any price control legislation can be effective unless 130 million Americans are sympathetic. Otherwise it will induce bootlegging."

Dewey proposed as "an American method of attacking the problem" that the bureau of labor statistics, the department of commerce, and the department of agriculture combine their efforts to [1] Publish wage scales in different industries; [2] give the annual and estimated future production of basic materials, as well as existing inventories; [3] establish a fixed parity price for basic farm commodities, as of July, 1941, based on 1909-'14 prices.

View of Price Fixer.

Henderson declared that greater government powers are needed to prevent "runaway inflation." Since the first of the year, he said, the average price of basic raw materials has moved up more than 25 per cent and wholesale prices have gained an average of almost 5 per cent.

Nelson also warned against permitting a recurrence of the World war inflation and its consequent collapse.

Congressman Kean said the President should obtain voluntary pledges from labor leaders not to ask for wage increases so long as the cost of living does not rise.

People and Events

J. Pierpont Morgan, international banker, marked his 74th birthday yesterday at his home, Matinecock Point, on East Island, New York. He made his usual trip in an open touring car to the Episcopal Church of St. John's of Lattingtown at Locust valley where he serves as senior warden and took up the collection as usual.

Dr. J. Malcolm Trout of the Michigan Agricultural college will speak before the Chicago Dairy Technology society tomorrow evening in the Sherman hotel. He will discuss the problem of combatting oxidized flavors in dairy products which are processed or evaporated for preservation or exportation.

Haymow Well Filled.

September 7, 1941.

AN inventory of the hay stored at the Du Page county farm reveals that there are approximately 236 tons stowed away—201 tons of new hay and 35 tons of old hay. A count of the stomachs that eventually will consume the fodder shows a hay capacity of 189 tons. Consequently the farm will have plenty of roughage to take care of all the animals in the coming year.

As a matter of fact the surplus is greater than it seems, for before some of the animals eat up their yearly quota of hay a new haying season will have arrived to dump fresh supplies of fodder into the barns. Thus under the present feeding and live stock program the farm always will be working with a comfortable margin of reserve hay.

Computing the hay consuming ability of the animals and comparing it with the available roughage is part of the farm manager's normal work. Just as a factory owner must know what raw materials he has available and what the production needs of his machines are, so must the farmer know the ratio between his feed stocks and his consumption needs.

150 Sheep, 110 Cattle.

Eating the hay this winter will be 150 head of sheep, 40 dairy cattle, 7 work horses, 70 head of feeder cattle, including 4 Guernseys from the dairy barn, and 8 Shorthorn heifers.

The work horses are fed liberally so they will be able to meet the work demands made upon them. They are given about 15 pounds of hay each a day. This accounts for 19 tons. The 40 dairy cattle will consume around 70 tons, according to the dairymaster. Adult animals receive 15 pounds a day, and the calves considerably less. Taken all together, he figures they will do away with the 70 tons of hay plus 160 tons of silage. The silage is fed at the rate of 30 pounds to producing cows and less to the smaller animals.

The sheep will be given hay for only seven months of the year. During the summer months they graze for their food and get no additional roughage. During the cold months they receive an average of three pounds of hay a day each. This accounts for 48 tons.

The 70 feeder cattle, if present plans are carried out, will be on feed for 270 days, eating about five pounds of roughage each a day. This means 47 tons of hay must be set aside for their needs. While they are on pasture and the grass is good they get enough from grazing so that additional hay need not be fed.

15 Tons for Shorthorns.

The eight pure bred Shorthorns will consume more than the five pounds eaten by the steers, for they depend more upon roughage for their nourishment. They are not being fattened for market so they receive less grain and more hay than the killing steers. The farm manager believes they will consume an average of 10 pounds of hay each a day, or 15 tons during the year.

There will be an ample surplus of silage this year, for there are 404 tons of it stored in the silos. The feeder steers will need around 75 tons, and the dairy cattle 160 tons. In estimating the quantity of silage the men found that the silos hold almost 25 per cent more legume silage than corn silage. This is due to the fact that the hay silage is less bulky and can be compressed more than the heavy corn silage.

The men at the farm only wish that their grain supply were as ample as the store of hay. Limited acreage in corn, wheat, and oats makes it impossible to raise enough grain for the live stock. The manager is forced to buy large quantities during the year.

SILO FILLING ON AIR.

A description of the silo filling on the Tribune Yorkville farm will be heard tomorrow morning at 6:30 a. m. on W-G-N's Farm Service hour. The program will be recorded by means of the W-G-N mobile unit this afternoon.

TACOMA BRIDGE.

Has the insurance on the loss of the Tacoma bridge been paid? How much insurance was involved?

—C. L. B.

Answer: Settlement of the loss from the collapse of the Tacoma Narrows bridge last November was made Aug. 15 when the Washington State Toll Bridge authority accepted the final offer of $4,000,000 made by the insurance companies involved. In addition to the cash settlement, the state retains salvage rights and interest in remaining properties, such as piers and anchorages.

Insurance carried on the $6,500,000 structure totaled $5,200,000 in addition to $240,000 in use and occupancy policies. The original offer of the insurance companies was $1,800,000. The state refused this offer, claiming total loss on the grounds that reconstruction of the bridge was inadvisable.

GROWING PROFITS.

Fruehauf Trailer company should be benefiting from national rearmament. How do its earnings compare over the last two or three years? What about common dividends.

—R. P. M.

Answer: The company reported net income for the first six months this year of $1,137,977, equal to $2.64 a common share, compared with $519,583, or $1.17 a share, in the same period a year ago. EARLY AMERICAN COLONIAL. I think it is. Women like it for spaciousness, easy to clean, no waste space. Sit in the sun porch, look across living room and hall into dining room, and you don't want to get up. There's a plaster crack or two, but the real estate woman only wanted to know was there a washroom downstairs. Had to admit there wasn't, but didn't the sunlight dancing off the dark green twist carpet up the jonquil walls onto white ceiling make the downstairs a cheerful place? Yes, but were the bathrooms tiled? She had me there. Four bedrooms, besides the big, heated sleeping porch, all light and airy, and not one of the three roomy baths tiled! Wouldn't she like to go out the lawn and look at healthy evergreens against a background of that rich, red brick they say is too expensive now? No, but she'd check the basement with its 10 inch steel girders on steel posts set on sunken concrete pillars. She wanted the cost. That was a cost of $163 a year, taxes of $286, and was gone. Perhaps she'll never come back, for she has seen what this was a home, and not just another house, and she never knew that a year ago money could not have bought it, or you have a couple of kids and you'd like to live where you can stretch your arms in green surroundings, breathe deep in clean air and know you never can be crowded, where you can count a million stars from a terrace swing at night in your part of the sky that willow, elm, and oak etch out above you. Then this home is on one of the nice corners in Highland Park, in a fine school district and a 5 minute walk to Northwestern fast trains. If you think you'd like to see it and talk about it, call Highland Park 2315. Occupancy October 1st, or owner will rent from you at $200 per month until you want it.
